Mayaguez spinoff — a delayed family reunion

TERRA LINDA, Calif. (AP) — A brother and sister say it took 22 years and an international incident to locate the seafaring father they claim is Charles T. Miller, captain of the U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez.

"I tried to get hold of him a number of times like when I got married and when my two children were born," James T. Miller said in an interview Monday. "Now he's got six grandchildren he doesn't know about."

The 34-year-old electrician said he and his mother recognized the captain's voice and face in a television broadcast Saturday after Cambodia released the Mayaguez crew.

"We compared old photos to pictures in the papers," he added. "He's older now, but it's him. No doubt about it. My sister and I are both excited and want to talk to him."

His 28-year-old sister, Cheryl Miller Pedersen, said, "I didn't even know if he was living. When I was born, he and my mother were divorced.

"I was five or so the last time I saw him," she recalled. "He took my brother and me to an Oakland department store and told us to buy anything we wanted for our Christmas presents."

"There's no bitterness towards him," she added. "Things like this happen when people get divorced."

Mrs. Pedersen, now a mother of four, said she was sending a letter to the captain in Hong Kong. It read in part:

"Dad, I guess it seems kind of funny to get a letter after all these years. As close as we can figure, it's been about 22 years since we've seen you last. We found out where you were from all the publicity you received when the Mayaguez was captured. Are you okay? We sure hope everything turned out well. You looked great on TV, and all the grandkids got a big kick out of seeing their grandfather.

"Well, Jim and I are both married. I have four boys. He has two children. Jim lives next door. We live about 20 miles out of San Francisco.

"We can't believe we finally found out where you were, and it is unbelievable how we found out. Uncle Smiley called to tell us that he thought it was you on television. Thank God for Uncle Smiley.

"I guess it's kind of hard to swallow (that) you have two, grown married children and six grandchildren, but here we are. I hope you will answer our letter and we will be able to keep in touch. When will you be coming back to the States?

"Love, Cheryl and Jim."

The 62-year-old sea captain's present wife, Ann Miller, of Fountain Valley, Calif., declined to either confirm or deny whether he had been married previously or had children. "They should ask my husband that," she said.

Sea-Land Company, the Oakland-based owner of the Mayaguez, said the ship would be in Hong Kong for five days, but Miller was not available immediately for comment.

Ford kills strip-mine bill

Claims it would up unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford vetoed a bill to protect the environment against coal-strip mining today, saying it would boost unemployment and consumer fuel bills.

Ford said he was not opposed to environmental protection, the main objective of the bill, but said he was opposed to the way Congress was going about it.

"We can develop our energy sources while protecting our environment," Ford said. "But this bill does not do that.

"I have supported responsible action to control surface mining and to reclaim damaged land," he said. "I continue to support actions which strike a proper balance between our energy and economic goals and important environmental objectives."

The President said the nation's energy situation has continued to deteriorate since he submitted his national energy program to Congress earlier this year.

"Coupled with this steadily deteriorating situation is the fact that the Congress has yet to act on a comprehensive program capable of achieving goals on which we all agree," Ford said.

"I am unable to sign this bill because as many as 36,000 people would lose jobs when unemployment already is too high," Ford said in his veto message to Congress.

"Consumers would pay higher costs — particularly for electric bills — when consumer costs are already too high," Ford said.

"The nation would be more dependent on foreign oil — when we are already overly dependent and dangerously vulnerable," the President said. "Coal production would be unnecessarily reduced — when this vital domestic energy resource is needed more than ever."

The President included a jab at Congress for not coming up with an acceptable energy program, saying: "America is approaching a more serious domestic energy shortage and we are not facing up to it."

Both sponsors and opponents of the bill agree that a House vote on the President's veto will be close.

Frank G. Zarb, head of the Federal Energy Administration, said Monday the President would veto the measure.

The bill is almost identical to one that Ford pocket vetoed last December, thus avoiding an override vote at the time because Congress was not in session.

Survey cites state school bankruptcies

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Some California school districts are bankrupt and many others will exhaust their reserves next month, the California School Boards Association said today.

The association estimated from a survey that staff layoffs will reach 4,000 to 5,000 and educational program cuts of $37 million to $50 million by next fall if additional money is not available.

The survey had responses from 312 districts which represent 75 per cent of the elementary and high school money spent in the state.

The 312 districts estimate they will be short by $338 million of meeting a projected 12 per cent inflationary impact on budgets, the association said.

Forty-six of the responding districts reported they had no general reserve funds or cash balances left.

Asian, Latin TB epidemic spreads

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The head of the local lung association says it is accurate to say that a tuberculosis epidemic exists among Asian and Spanish-surnamed populations in Los Angeles County.

And, added Dr. Ralph C. Jung, president of the Los Angeles County Lung Association, the incidence of TB is on the upswing in affluent suburbs — not just poverty areas.

"The increase, originally confined to barrio and ghetto areas, is now being reflected in other areas," Jung said Monday.

"New cases in the San Fernando, San Gabriel and coastal service regions of the county Health Services Department showed a marked increase in 1974," he went on.

Jung stated that the number of new tuberculosis cases rose 10 per cent countywide — from 1,340 to 1,474 — between 1970 and 1974.

But the rate of new cases per 100,000 population jumped 31 per cent — to 583 cases — among the Spanish-surnamed in the county and soared 36 per cent — to 135 cases — among a group mainly identified as Asiatic.

Jung termed "epidemic" a fair description for the situation.

The language problem among residents with Asian backgrounds or the Spanish-surnamed rates the blame for the high rate, in the eyes of Dr. Ralph R. Sachs, county Health Services Department deputy director for community health services.

"A year ago," he said, "We implemented a program in high-incidence areas but the degree of tuberculosis there is higher than we anticipated."

"We reach a certain level in the black community," Sachs said, "whose members speak English and respond to our techniques. In the other areas we often have an impasse.

Sachs called for more nurses and community workers to act as teams in high-TB regions. Christopher Hayden, tuberculosis program manager, said he hoped the county Board of Supervisors would allocate a half million dollars more than the $275 million now contemplated for the next fiscal year.

Despite boycott

Surgeries 'about normal' at valley hospitals

While some valley hospitals report a cutback in surgeries and general staff reductions, others are proceeding with "business as usual" in spite of the surgical boycott by anesthesiologists.

At Pomona Valley Community Hospital the surgery schedule this week is "about normal," according to a surgical nurse this morning.

"We had many cases already scheduled and patients in the house. None of these was canceled and we've had the usual number of emergencies. However, the schedule is tapering off on Thursday and Friday," she said.

The nurse continued, "next week's schedule is tapering off and then, if the legislature doesn't act soon, it may be a different story here."

Dennis Phelps, PVCH director of personnel said "The patient census is just about normal today. At this time we are encouraging staff members to voluntarily take earlier vacations than they might have planned or some time off, if they choose."

John Towers, administrator at San Antonio Community Hospital, Upland, reported that their census, too, is normal.

"If the anesthesiologists continue to boycott surgeries for an extended time, we will encourage our people to voluntarily take some time off or take vacation time," he added.

Beginning Monday, anesthesiologists in the valley joined fellow physicians throughout the state in restricting surgeries to emergencies, obstetrics and suspected cancer patients. The anesthesiologists are protesting the rise in malpractice insurance rates facing all physicians in the state.

The slowdown has hit about one-fourth of Southern California hospitals, officials say.

The Hospital Council of Southern California said Monday that 45 of the 212 hospitals in the six-county area of Southern California are doing only surgeries related to emergencies and cancer.

Inter-Community Hospital at Covina, which normally does about 25 surgeries a day, is now down to about six, according to Rosemary Cruitt, a spokesman for the hospital. The rest of the hospital's functions are continuing but employes are going on a three or four-day work week.

Queen of the Valley in West Covina has closed down some sections and is planning a staff reduction if necessary, said a spokesman.

Employes at Foothill Presbyterian Hospital in Glendora have been advised to expect a 25 to 35 per cent reduction in staff because of the surgery curtailment there, according to Don Adams, FPH administrator.

"We regret the possible need to curtail our staff, and recognize the hardship this action may place on many," Adams said. "But the hospital has no alternative but to try to offset serious economic problems that will arise due to the expected drop in census."

Adams continued "Many physicians will be confronted by malpractice insurance premium increases at least twice the cost of their present rates.

"Our malpractice overhead costs parallel theirs. Neither we, nor the patients, can afford to pay any increase in malpractice premiums."

Dr. Edward Zalta, chief of staff at FPH and president-elect of Foothill District 13 of the Los Angeles County Medical Association and chairman of the organization's malpractice committee said, "if the legislators would listen to what society is saying, they would discard the present unworkable system.

"This system lines the pockets of a few. It should be replaced with a Compensation Board that would be fair to all.

"Doctors and hospitals are protesting on behalf of their patients by refusing to pass on these exorbitant costs," Dr. Zalta added.

Dr. Theodore B. Okie, president of the Southern California Council of the American Federation of Physicians and Dentists, announced the union's support of the actions taken by anesthesiologists in Long Beach, San Gabriel Valley and Orange County.

Dr. Philip W. Weingert, president of the Orange County Anesthesia Society, said he expected nearly all the anesthesiologists in the area to join the slowdown by Friday.

Monday legislations began a special session called by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. in an effort to get the physicians back to work.

But during the legislature's regular session, the Assembly Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee approved a bill by the legislature's only physician, Assemblyman Bob McLennan, that would put a lid on malpractice insurance rates for the year.

Fall from horse fatal to Claremont girl

A Claremont girl, who would have been 14 today, died Monday in Pomona Valley Community Hospital of injuries she suffered Saturday afternoon in a horseback riding accident.

The victim, Gretchen L. Felsch, 3035 Forbes Ave., suffered a head injury when she fell while riding in the 300 block of Miramar Avenue in a county area.

She landed in rocks and struck her head, authorities said. She was aided by county fire department paramedics before being taken to the hospital.

Miss Felsch was born May 20, 1961, in Berkeley. She was in the eighth grade at La Puerta Junior High School in Claremont. She was a member of the United Church of Christ, Congregational, in Claremont.

Miss Felsch is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Felsch of Claremont; a brother, Steven, a sister, Theresa and her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Boggess, all of Claremont; and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred O. Felsch of Alta Loma.

Services will be held in the church's Kingman Chapel, on Friday at 3 p.m. The Rev. Christian Hilbig will officiate. Private burial will be in Oak Park Cemetery in Claremont, where a private committal service will be held.

Todd Memorial Chapel Pomona is in charge of arrangements. Friends may make memorial contributions to the United Church of Christ Nursery School Scholarship Fund, 233 W. Harrison Ave., Claremont.

Legislature in extra session on farm bill

Brown's amendments to labor proposal gain wide support; passage now appears certain

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. called a special session of the California Legislature beginning today to speed enactment of his secret ballot farm labor bill.

The action came after Teamsters and the AFL-CIO joined Cesar Chavez Monday in endorsing the Democratic governor's proposal.

Those endorsements, plus the support of spokesmen for major growers including Gallo Wines, made passage of the precedentsetting bill almost certain.

It marks the first agreement between Chavez and Teamsters on farm labor legislation.

"At this point it looks like we have virtual unanimity among the United Farm Workers, Teamsters, the growers and the legislature," Brown said

"This fall we can have secret ballot elections in key areas. Today marks a victory not only for the legislature, but for the farm workers and for the people of California," Brown added.

The bill sets up a state commission to supervise elections, enacts fair labor practices and authorizes secondary boycotts under limited circumstances.

Amendments adopted Monday after a day of closed-door meetings in Brown's office resolved disputes among the various unions involved in agriculture.

Brown said his order convening the special session — the third one he has called this year — was part of the compromise. It is intended to speed up the process of enacting the bill.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy predicted that the Brown plan could be law within three weeks, and that the first organizing elections could be held in September.

Brown hammered out agreement on farm labor legislation two weeks ago between Chavez' United Farm Workers union and major growers.

But Teamsters condemned the plan, which they said would wipe out their current contracts and leave workers with no union for a year or more.

Butchers, packing house workers and building trades unions also objected, saying the Brown plan would take away their jurisdiction over agricultural jobs and give it to a farm labor union — either Chavez' UFW or Teamsters.

All of those unions, plus California AFL-CIO boss John Henning, endorsed Brown's plan after Monday's amendments.

The California Farm Bureau Federation and the Agricultural Council of California earlier had endorsed the plan. Among agricultural groups — both growers and labor — only the Imperial Valley Vegetable Growers Association remained opposed.

Brown reversed his position of the past two weeks of refusing all attempts to amend his bill. He said earlier that the agreement he hammered out May 6 between Chavez and growers was so delicate that no amendments could be allowed.

One amendment was seen as a concession to Teamsters, who now hold 95 per cent of the farm labor contracts in California.

Teamsters protested that the bill would void their contracts next Jan. 1. The amendment says those contracts will not be voided unless the union is challenged and loses a secret ballot election among workers.

Another amendment was sought by building trades unions to preserve their current contracts with agricultural employers.

Foes had said Brown couldn't get his bill through the Senate without amendments.

Brown's special session order means that three separate emergency sessions will be underway concurrent with the legislature's regular session. The others are on housing and medical malpractice.

Emmys: old pros prevail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two old movie pros, Katharine Hepburn and Laurence Olivier, and their "Love Among the Ruins" shared top honors with "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" at the 27th Emmy Awards.

Oscar-winners Hepburn and Olivier won television academy awards Monday night as outstanding stars in a special program for "Love Among the Ruins," which scored a total of six Emmys including those for director George Cukor and writer James Costigan.

"The Mary Tyler Moore Show" was hailed by the television academy as the outstanding comedy series of 1974-75, winning a total of six Emmys including those for supporting performers Betty White, Ed Asner and Cloris Leachman.

But Miss Moore lost out as lead actress in a comedy series to Valerie Harper, whose "Rhoda" was on offshoot of the Moore series.

"Upstairs, Downstairs," the British-made story of servant life in Edwardian England, won for the second year in a row as best dramatic series. Its victory and that of the British-made "Love Among the Ruins" gave the Emmy awards a decidedly British accent.

But said Britisher Jean Marsh, chosen best dramatic actress for her role as a maid in "Upstairs, Downstairs": "It's very generous, unchauvinistic and typically American."

Some of the winners were also losers at the Hollywood Palladium festivities. Tony Randall was heralded best lead actor in a comedy series for "The Odd Couple" and Jessica Walter as best lead actress in a limited series for "Amy Prentiss." Both shows have been cancelled.

"QBVII," which had scored the highest in nominations with 13, tied with "Love Among the Ruins," also gaining six awards, but none were in major categories.

"The Carol Burnett Show" won as best comedy-variety or music series for the third time and "An Evening With John Denver" was named best special in that category.

The five-part "Benjamin Franklin" with its revolving cast portraying the statesman-inventor collected five awards including outstanding limited series.

"The Law," a television movie about a feisty public defender, was a surprise winner as outstanding special in comedy or drama.

Other major awards included:

Robert Blake, "Baretta," lead actor in a drama series; Peter Falk, "Columbo," lead actor in a limited series; Jim McKay, "Wide World of Sports," oustanding sports broadcaster.

Cloris Leachman was a double winner. Besides her Emmy for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," she also picked one up for her supporting performance on a "Cher" show.

Chaffey school district

2nd continuation school eyed

Initial steps to establish a second continuation high school in the Chaffey Union High School District were taken by the board of trustees Monday night.

By a unanimous vote, a resolution was adopted instructing the administration to seek approval from the state Department of Education to open a second "small high school" in September.

Valley View High School, the district's continuation high school at 1801 E. 6th St., Ontario, can no longer accommodate all students needing or requesting continuation classes, administrators said.

It was built to handle 300 pupils. Currently 365 are enrolled. The district has another 130 pupils on a waiting list, and 150 others in regular schools already have been identified as being better suited for continuation school.

Administrators said a warehouse-type structure would be leased in the west side of the district where an open-classroom, three-year pilot program would be offered, geared to the younger student, with emphasis on basic education rather than behavior modification.

In response to 1975-76 salary and fringe proposals made two weeks ago by the Certificated Employes Council (CENC), school board president G. A. Chalfant said, "It is our initial response that our existing policy is adequate, and our present salary and fringe benefit schedule is adequate, but we are willing to meet and confer on these items."

CENC had asked a 12 per cent salary increase plus increases in fringe benefits, including psychiatric insurance coverage, and a voice in deciding priorities in the entire budget.

Of the 536 certificated people the district currently employes, 208 earn annual salaries of $18,100, the very top of the salary scale; 17 others earn $17,575 a year, and 25 earn $17,139 a year.

The board presented to CENC its initial proposal on 15 policies and regulations covering such matters as administrative appointments, summer school employment procedures and how the salary schedule works. These proposals, along with a revised proposal from CENC, will be placed on the negotiations table at meet-and-confer sessions Thursday.

CENC chairman Robert Haage labeled "biased in the extreme" a letter sent to district residents by Schools Supt. Allan G. Smith asking for direction in negotiating 1975-76 proposals with employes. He requested a seminar at which CENC could make its position clear to the public.

After a 1-hour discussion, the board tabled for further study a recommendation made by the district curriculum steering committee that graduation requirements in English and social studies be placed at 25 units each next year, reinstating half of what was cut by board action in March.

The board accepted with deep regret the retirement resignations of Isaac Funk, industrial arts teacher at Chaffey High School the past 33 years and department chairman for 22 years; Ruby Wignall, Upland High School counselor for 19 years; and Constance Meeks, administrative secretary after 19 years in the district. All are to become effective in June.

Claremont board gets La Puerta petition

Parents on closing: no, no, no!

It was La Puerta Night at the Claremont School Board meeting Monday night at Danbury School where more than 300 persons crowded into the multipurpose room to air their views about the possible closings of Sycamore Elementary School and La Puerta Intermediate School.

Whereas the majority of persons attending a special workshop meeting last Wednesday night spoke for the retention of Sycamore School as a neighborhood school, most of the speakers Monday night were La Puerta parents.

Despite taunts from some of the audience wishing the board to make a decision that night on what schools will be closed, the board felt it did not have enough information and delayed the action until the June 2 meeting when the preliminary budget for 1975-76 will be discussed.

Board member Arthur Steffen told one disgruntled parent: "If you want us to make a decision tonight, we would be making it on only 70 per cent of the information we need."

Various board members were able to make some parents aware of how much the district is tied to state-mandated programs over which the board has no control as to financing.

La Puerta parents presented to the board petitions containing 1,013 signatures asking that La Puerta be kept open.

Steffen said that he had heard maligning comments about El Roble and other schools based on an emotional attitude.

"El Roble offers an exceptional educational opportunity," he said.

Board president Ernest N. Taylor told the audience that the staff couldn't physically come up with the figures the board had requested, and that the board should hold up on any decision until June 2.

Mrs. Josephine Smith, a Pilgrim Place resident, said she couldn't understand the emotional content centered on Sycamore School.

"Somebody's ox is being gored, or a rip-off is coming," she said.

Referring to Sycamore School's claim of big trees, Irving Mandel said he was emotionally involved with La Puerta, which couldn't claim a tree, but could claim old rocks.

"I'm concerned about dumping our kids because of economy," he said. "I abhor rumor-mongering such as El Roble being known as a switchblade school."

Lyn Meyers stressed La Puerta as being in the area of future growth.

Several parents stressed that the board needs an alternative to closing any schools.

District Supt. R. S. Kirkendall explained the story of declining enrollment for the local district, and began with 1969-70 when there were 7,411 pupils in all grades, compared with 6,381 as of Oct. 1, 1974.

Taylor invited the public to join the board in a line-by-line examination of the proposed budget June 2.

Recession touching bottom? . . . Maybe

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department's top economist says the recession apparently has touched bottom.

James L. Pate, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, said this judgment is very tentative and that economic signals will continue to be mixed for the next couple of months.

"But I think there is a possibility we probably reached the low in April," he said. "I do not see any signs yet of recovery. By the time we see the recovery in our statistics we will be well into it."

Pate's assessment came as his department prepared to release the revised version of the broadest indicator of the nation's economic health, gross national product, or GNP.

The department reported last month that GNP, the total output of goods and services in the economy, slipped at an annual rate of 10.4 per cent over the first three months of this year after adjustment for inflation.

The revised figures, which also will provide the first government report on corporate profits from January through March, is expected to show that GNP dropped even more sharply than initially estimated. But Pate said he does not expect a revision "of really great significance."

The revision is routinely made to account for more precise data on the first quarter's performance.

Pate said he expects that the deterioration continued until April but that the economy now has stabilized.

He conceded that some economic indicators continue to point to further drop-offs. But those indicators, such as industrial production, have at least slowed their slide. Industrial production dropped fourtenths of 1 per cent last month compared to a 1.3 per cent slip in March.

And Pate noted that personal income, which has continued to advance despite the recession, spurted by $6.7 billion in April compared to a $2.3 billion increase in March.

No SS tax hike through '76: Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration today opposed any Social Security tax increases before 1977 but declined to advance a specific proposal to bail the system out of its current deficit which threatens to deplete emergency reserves by about 1980.

Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, said the White House was "reluctant to put forward another specific proposal in light of the cavalier disregard" Congress demonstrated toward an earlier suggestion to limit Social Security cost-of-living increases to five per cent this year.

He told the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security, however, that the administration is opposed to any Social Security tax increases for 1975 or 1976.

"Any revenue-producing method to be selected ... should avoid sudden and sharp rises in either the tax rate or the wage base," Weinberger said.

This year Social Security taxes are 5.85 per cent each on employers and employes up to the first $14,100 of each worker's wages.

"It is our position that no tax increases or other Social Security revenue-producing measures should be adopted which affect calendar years 1975 or 1976," Weinberger said. "In our view, it is neither necessary nor wise to consider any change in revenue development before 1977."

Weinberger said if Congress had approved a five per cent ceiling on Social Security benefit increases this year, more than two-thirds of the 1975 deficit could have been avoided.

"Over $2 billion has been added to the total deficit by the refusal of the Congress to adopt the five per cent ceiling. This $2 billion differential affects every future year and is a continuing factor in the trust fund's projected deficits," Weinberger said.

New Guam refugee threat—typhoon

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

AGANA, Guam (AP) — A warm tropical rain fell on Guam's "Tent City" refugee camp today, while officials completed plans for worse weather yet to come.

U.S. Navy spokesmen said that approval had been given for a contingency plan to move all 40,000 Vietnamese refugees to shelters should a typhoon hit.

"We're not afraid of the rain," said a Navy officer as raindrops pelted the tents. "But we're afraid of what comes with it — wind."

Adm. Steve Morrison, commander of Naval forces in the Marianna Islands, has expressed fears that winds above 40 miles per hour could blow away the thousands of tents now housing refugees.

But today, his office announced that adequate precautions are being taken.

"This is headquarters for the Fleet Weather Central Warning System," said a Navy spokesman. "We would have adequate warning time to move all these people to shelter areas."

He said the thousands of refugees would be told to pack up all their belongings in the event of an approaching high wind and they would then walk about a mile to gymnasiums, barracks and Navy supply warehouses on the U.S. Naval Base here.

These areas will be stocked with water and C-rations. The tents would be folded up and strapped to the ground to keep them from flying away, the spokesman said.

Although no typhoons are currently in sight, the island's rainy season is nearing and tropical storms here are sometimes accompanied by winds up to 75 m.p.h.

Laos . . .

Pathet Lao troops took over the southern Laos city of Savannakhet today, and a dozen Americans held in loose arrest there by left-wing students were reported "just fine." Thousands of townspeople cheered the Communist-led troops, and rightist troops joined the victory parade.

The takeover of Savannakhet, which previously had been under control of Laotian rightists, came after two weeks of political upheaval in which the rightwing faction of the coalition government surrendered political power to the Communist-led Pathet Lao and neutralists.

Mutiny . . .

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Cambodian naval crew which claims it seized the freighter Mayaguez says it later mutinied against its Communist captain and sailed to Thailand seeking asylum, sources say.

The Thai navy issued a one-sentence statement in Bangkok acknowledging that it had impounded a gunboat flying the flag of the old Cambodian government and disarmed and detained 10 crew members.

Aftermath . . .

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman denied that the U.S. Navy would make a search for the bodies of 16 men missing in the military operation that recovered the Mayaguez. They were lost in the three helicopters that were shot down, and the commander of the Marine landing force indicated Monday that an attempt might be made to recover the bodies.

The Pentagon promised a "preliminary final count" today of American casualties in the operation.

Saigon . . .

Associated Press correspondent George Esper reported from Saigon that life in many ways had returned to normal in Saigon, but nearly three weeks after the almost bloodless Communist takeover of the South Vietnamese capital, there was still no sign of a civilian government for the city.

Esper said markets and shops are open again, and looting has been reduced. But the banks are still closed, and many residents and offices are hard pressed for money.

International airline traffic has not resumed. Telephone and telex circuits abroad remain cut.

Autos . . .

. . . Russia—a breakthrough

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists have developed an electric car that doesn't need bulky storage batteries, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

Tass said a prototype station wagon run on alternating current is undergoing tests and is expected to "operate normally" at speeds of up to 50 miles per hour carrying a payload of half a ton.

"The singularity of the design lies in the machine's storage batteries being charged from common 380-volt industrial alternating current source using a tiristor system (a type of converter), a device substantially reducing the weight and avoiding the need for bulky charging units," Tass said.

"The car can be charged at any of the points along the road where simple plug-and-socket devices will be mounted. When the vehicle is on the move, the direct current from its storage batteries will be converted again into alternating current and fed to the asynchrous alternating current engine."

The report said 10 prototypes will be put on the road this year as small cargo trucks. The designers foresee the possibility of using a modified electric vehicle as an in-town bus for 6-8 passengers, Tass said.

. . . U.S.—higher prices

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. probably will raise new car prices about $300 this fall, says board chairman Henry Ford II.

Ford's prediction, made Monday at an impromptu news conference, was at the upper limit of the increase of 3 to 6 per cent mentioned by company President Lee A. Iacocca at the firm's stockholder's meeting earlier this month.

New car prices rose an average $450 last September and another $500 or so in the preceding nine months, contributing to the sharp sales slump started by the Mideast oil embargo and deepened last fall by economic recession.

. . . Lisbon

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — The government shut down the Socialist party newspaper Republica today pending a decision by a special press tribunal on the seizure of the newspaper by Communist workers.

A spokesman for the information ministry said Lisbon's only non-Communist daily must cease publication until the court rules on the dispute. The decision came after a visit by high government officials while Socialists kept vigil through the night outside the offices.

. . . Greece

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Trans World Airlines jet crash killing 88 persons off the coast of Greece last September was caused by a bomb detonated in the rear cargo compartment, the National Transportation Safety Board says.

It also reported Monday that the same flight, TWA Flight 841 from Athens to Rome, apparently was the target of an unsuccessful sabotage attempt 13 days before the Sept. 8 fatal crash of the Boeing 707.

. . . Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The Bolivian government placed the local representative of Gulf Oil Corp. under house arrest today, ordered Gulf's American president to appear in court and said the company would be "criminally prosecuted" for making illegal political contributions to Bolivian officials.

District Attorney Rolando Simbron said he had issued a summons for Bob R. Dosey, president of the American oil company, to appear in a Bolivian court.

. . . Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The chiefs of Uruguay's armed forces forces put strong pressure on President Juan M. Bordaberry today in an attempt to force him to reinstate the chairman of the national meat board.

There was speculation that the military might drive the 46year-old president from office if he did not retain Eduardo Peile.

Bordaberry fired Peile on Monday, charging that he had issued orders for the slaughtering of cattle in defiance of "express instructions.

First Lady Mrs. Gerald Ford Monday got an unexpected kiss from Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss. Mrs. Ford was speaking at Pepperdine College in Los Angeles as Strauss passed by giving Los Angeles the once over as a potential 1976 convention site. He stopped his entourage and greeted Mrs. Ford with a kiss and wished her a pleasant day. Meanwhile in the nation's capital, President Ford attended a movie with the film's star, Candace Bergen whose political beliefs don't exactly coincide with the President's. Miss Bergen received a warm handshake from Ford after the screening. [See stories at right.]

. . . in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — His children were off doing other things, his wife was out of town, so President Ford went to a movie and saw a fictionalized account of how another president sent Marines to the rescue of Americans in trouble.

It was escapist entertainment Monday night, but the situation bore some resemblance to Ford's action last week when he dispatched Marines to rescue the cargo ship Mayaguez and its crew.

Seated next to Ford at a special screening of the new movie, "The Wind and the Lion," was Candice Bergen, who plays Eden Pedecaris, the American woman. Ford often leaned toward her in the darkened theater and whispered.

. . . in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Receiving a Distinguished Woman of the Year Award for her interest in the arts, First Lady Betty Ford said she believes "children especially should be exposed to art."

"Appreciation of art is something that really costs nothing," the President's wife pointed out. Yet, it provides "so much personal joy, growth and understanding" that its benefits for children "go on and on throughout their lives."

Mrs. Ford spoke at a $100-a-plate dinner of the National Art Association where she was honored Monday night before 450 guests in a Beverly Wilshire Hotel ballroom decorated with cymbidium orchids.

The First Lady went on to San Diego today for another art event, the opening of a new wing of the Gallery of Fine Arts there. And she added a special sightseeing trip of her own to the San Diego Zoo.

During her brief stay in the Los Angeles area, Mrs. Ford joined Monday in saluting the nation's oldest foster grandparent, Pearl Williams, from Jefferson County, Ala., who was celebrating her 106th birthday with the Head Start Center at the urban campus of Pepperdine University in the Watts area.

Johnson scion killed

SANTA MONICA (AP)—A 28-year-old member of the Johnson & Johnson medical products family was killed when he lost control of his motorcycle, police said.

Willard Johnson was thrown 30 feet when his motorcycle slammed into a parking meter Monday, officers said.

He died a few hours later in Santa Monica Hospital.

Johnson, who lived in New York City, was the great-grandson of Robert Wood Johnson, the founder of Johnson and Johnsoin, and the son of the late Robert Johnson, a former president of the company, police said.

Officers quoted a family spokesman in New York as saying that Johnson's mother, Mrs. Peter Gillespie, had been told of her son's death, and with other members of the family, was enroute to Los Angeles to claim the body.

On March 30, Johnson's younger brother Keith, 24, was found dead in his Los Angeles apartment from an apparent drug overdose.

Judges' pay hike okayed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The Assembly has narrowly approved a bill giving California judges a cost-of-living pay raise three months earlier every year.

The action came Monday despite arguments that judges are already paid too much. The lower house's 54-19 vote sent the measure to the Senate.

Assemblyman Bob Beverly argued that his bill meant "no additional costs" to either state or local governments.

The Manhattan Beach legislator, who is the Republican floor leader, said the measure would simply give judges a cost-of-living raise on July 1 each year rather than on Sept. 1.

"This has nothing to do with raising judges' salaries," added Assemblyman John Millier, D-Berkeley.

But Assemblyman Tom Bane said the measure would in fact give judges a raise by giving them a higher salary three months early.

"This will give them $1,000 that they would not have gotten otherwise," the Van Nuys Democrat argued. "In a couple of years municipal court judges will make more than the governor."

Currently, Municipal Court judges earn $37,098 a year. Salaries for the remainder of the judiciary range up to the $54,841 earned by the chief justice of the state Supreme Court.

But all those salaries will increase by about 12 per cent on Sept. 1, when the cost of living increase for 1974 is included.

The governor is paid $49,100 a year.

Youth is ordered to CYA

A Pomona youth, declared unfit recently for consideration as a juvenile, has been committed to the custody of the California Youth Authority on two convictions of first-degree robbery.

The youth, Abria Ellis Boglin, 2415 Lennox Ave., was committed by Pomona Superior Court Judge Charles S. Vogel. The committment is for an indeterminate period.

Boglin was 17 when charged with attempted rape, two robbery counts, burglary and felonious assault. He eventually pleaded guilty only to the robbery charges. In February he was ruled unfit for consideration as a juvenile and was ordered prosecuted in adult court.

The robbery charges were for the holdup last summer of Pacific Finance Co. at 2405 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, and the robbery of the Stop n Go Market at 1175 E. Philadelphia St., Pomona.

The attempted rape, felonious assault and burglary charges resulted from a break-in of a Pomona doctor's office in which a receptionist was attacked. Those charges were dismissed.

A specially tuned directional microphone system, found only in a new MAICO eyeglass hearing aid, may help you hear more clearly and at a greater distance in the presence of competing sounds than ever before. Thanks to a directivity pattern-used previously in microphones for TV broadcasting — you may hear more comfortably with less strain and confusion. MAICO factory tests showed that sounds entering the Mark 140 from the front received significantly more amplification than other sounds around the aid, compared to models not having the same directivity pattern. With many competing sounds around you more effectively reduced, especially those sounds at the sides and rear, you may find you can hear sounds from the front more clearly and at a greater distance. # Cranston emerging as Senate strategist

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the usual round of congratulations following Senate passage of the consumer agency bill, some of the strongest praise went to a senator who had neither drafted its provisions in committee nor argued its merits in debate.

He is Sen. Alan Cranston, the lanky 60-year-old California Democrat, who has emerged as one of his party's chief behind-the-scenes strategists, the man who can count and line up the votes.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., called him "the best nose counter in the Senate," while Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., went further.

Calling Cranston "the No. 1 counter of all times in the U.S. Senate," Ribicoff said "he is the indispensable man to victory, and I comment to my colleagues that if they are ever in a tough fight, they should not start it unless they have Alan Cranston by their side."

It's a role Cranston has gradually assumed in his seven years in the Senate, starting on his own but now increasingly as an unofficial arm of the Democratic leadership.

"I just started doing it fairly early in the Senate in bills I was interested in," he said in an interview. "It isn't only counting, it's figuring out who can bring what change."

Last year, Cranston played an active role in lining up votes to balk filibusters against a number of controversial bills, including measures dealing with post-card voter registration, the new legal services corporation, campaign finance and, of course, the consumer measure. That bill passed last Thursday after the Senate voted to end a filibuster against it.

Asked about his role, Cranston said he realized shortly after coming to the Senate that "the most effective way to get something done is not to be pushing yourself out in front all the time, but rather by doing the work. By now, I can estimate pretty well what will happen on a bill except for about 20 senators," he added.

Cranston said that several years ago he ran into a lot of difficulty with two senators now retired, John J. Williams, R-Del., and Alan Bible, D-Nev. They wouldn't disclose their votes.

"Bible took a real pleasure in asking me what my count was and then not saying what he'd do," Cranston said.

Although he holds no formal leadership position, Cranston said Democratic leaders "often ask me if I know what's happening on something."

By pulling from his pocket the crumpled, roll-call sheet used to count his vote estimates on several issues, Cranston can usually tell.

Polluted air traced

TOWANDA, Pa. (AP) — Tiny specks of red, yellow, blue and green phosphors, produced here by GTE Sylvania Inc. and invisible to the naked eye, are helping California scientists accurately trace patterns of industrial and automotive air pollution.

Concentrating in the Los Angeles area, scientists recently discovered that polluted air can affect municipalities up to 60 miles away. In a pollution simulation test, the nontoxic phosphor particles were released simultaneously from four locations at smokestack and ground levels. After being borne aloft by wind currents, fallout patterns were determined by up to 80 monitoring stations. Since the phosphor particles have a precise grain size and color and do not exist naturally in nature, they can be readily identified under a microscope.

Preliminary tests have indicated that stationary sources might be responsible for a higher percentage of air pollution than is generally realized.

Police test blimp in place of helicopter—and like it

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—When the city of Tempe, Ariz., banned use of police helicopters because they were to noisy the police department experimented with a blimp.

Both the city's police chief and an official of the Goodyear Aerospace Corp. now say the six-month experiment, conducted in 1973 showed such an aircraft could prove useful for crime prevention.

Tempe's police chief Arthur F. Fairbanks said use of Goodyear's blimp proved that the blimp is safe, costs less to operate than helicopters and can cruise at low speeds.

Fred R. Nebiker, marketing manager of Goodyear Aerospace Corp., which conducted the study with the city, said, "Not only could the officers detect crimes in progress..they could direct intercept units for quick apprehension of fleeing suspects."

A puncture would not immediately deflate the blimp, Nebiker said, because it would be filled with a low pressure gas which would leak out slowly.

Fairbanks said Tempe's application for funds to buy a blimp was denied by the U.S. Justice Department probably because such a blimp is expensive. Nebiker said the blimp—which would be shorter than the regular Goodyear blimp—would cost $1,746,000 to develop, test and gain government certification. He added that additional airships could then be mass produced at $519,000 each.

Faced with a tough decision

Frank Pastore is not your typical high school athlete. And so he's faced with a not-so-typical problem.

However, the Damien High pitching sensation has got everything well planned out . . . for the time being, anyway.

Frank, big and strong hardthrowing righthander who went unbeaten during the regular season, is being swarmed by pro scouts every time he takes to the mound.

The Spartan senior figures to go high in the first round of the June baseball draft, and could even be one of the first 10 drafted. But all that attention doesn't impress him.

"I get the feeling that the scouts are upset because I'm not awed," the Damien star admitted. "I just don't want to take a chance with my future."

Pastore has already signed a letter of intent for Stanford, and he's still leaning toward that offer over the potential pro offers.

* * *

"I haven't really decided yet," he reported recently at a baseball luncheon, where he was honored as the Valley High School Baseball Player of the Week. "I've been figuring out what it's going to cost me to go to college. I've also been talking to some financiers and lawyers. I want to find out how I can insure my money."

Now the ordinary high school athlete doesn't usually go to those extremes to make sure he's making the right decision.

Frank has also taken into account the possibilities of wrecking his arm — both as a pro and as a college player.

"If I hurt my arm in college, I still have my education," he said. "If I hurt my arm in the pros, my bonus would evaporate after a period of time. I have to consider the worst, and in doing that I favor Stanford. But every day I have a new outlook. I could change my mind overnight."

Some high school athletes who get that kind of attention might show signs of panicking under pressure. Not Frank. He's taking things calmly and thinking things out.

"About a week ago, I heard I might be offered a pro contract in six figures," Frank reported. "Then somebody told me that even if I went as high as No. 3 in the first round of the draft, I wouldn't get more than $80,000. So I don't know what to think."

Anyway, Pastore is the kind of guy who can be successful in anything he tries. He's very intelligent, and you know he's got a very bright future ahead of him — no matter what direction he heads.

DOUBLE TROUBLE: Ganesha High's tennis team this year had a very interesting combination of brothers competing. They were the Stahl and Low brothers. What's very unusual about the situation is that their full names are Rob and Dave Stahl, and Rob and Dave Low. In both cases, the older player is Rob and the younger is Dave.

Rob Stahl reached the semifinals in the San Antonio League singles championships, and brother Dave made it to the second round of the SAL doubles championships. So guess who Dave Stahl's doubles partner was? That's right. Dave Low.

SCHEDULE CHANGE: The CIF-Southern Section baseball championships will mark their third appearance at Dodger Stadium as this year's 3-A and 4-A finals will be played at the 56,000-seat facility on Tuesday, June 3.

The opening pitch of the 3-A championship game is set for 4 p.m., with the 4-A finale schedule to get underway at 6:30 p.m. The contests were originally scheduled for June 4, but the availability of Dodger Stadium 24 hours earlier brought about the change.

GIRLS COMPETITION: East Los Angeles College will serve as the host site on three dates for this year's CIF-Southern Section girls' swimming and diving championships.

Free-lance entrants will qualify today at Long Beach Millikan High, with all qualifiers converging next Tuesday at East L.A. for the prelims. Prelims in diving will get underway Wednesday, May 28, at East L.A. Championship finals in both swimming and diving are set for Saturday, May 31, with action billed for a 7 p.m. start.

There will be 32-team draws in both 4-A and 3-A divisions of the CIF-Southern Section girls' softball championship playoffs, which get underway on Thursday, May 29.

The CIF-Southern Section championships in girls' gymnastics are slated for Friday at Fullerton Community College, beginning at 7 p.m.

Qualifiers from respective leagues will converge on sites of Blair High in Pasadena and Ontario High Saturday for the CIF-Southern Section girls' badminton prelims, beginning at 10 a.m.

Smiling Chinese greet Yanks

Progress Bulletin Sports

CANTON China (AP) — Streets swarming with careening bicycles. Honking horns. Culinary delights fit for the gullets of kings. And miles upon miles of glistening white teeth—the smile of China.

These were the impressions the American track and field athletes took with them today as they boarded a Chinese commercial air carrier for the next stop on their tour—once racy, rakish, rougish Shanghai, now a lady of repute.

"I can't get over how happy everybody seems to be," said Jane Frederick of Goleta, Calif., a high jumper and pentathlon star whose father is a retired professor of political science and Chinese expert from the University of California.

"People on other trips I have been on, particularly those in the Soviet Union, have always seemed so grim. I notice so many children playing happily in the streets here. I don't remember that in Russia."

This latest delegation to come to the People's Republic of China on a mission of international good will has been almost unanimous in voicing surprise at the apparent serenity of the country.

Luxuries are obviously rare, if non-existent. But nobody here seems to be going hungry. There are no beggars on the streets. It is impossible to give a tip for service in the hotel. Everybody seems to be busy and working.

En route to Canton by train from the Hong Kong border the athletes rode in air-conditioned comfort on soft, pillowy seats covered with white linen and lace.

Looking out the train windows, they saw endless acres of lush farm land and farmers tilling the soil with the most primitive means. But the view produced none of the delapidated and decaying shacks familiar in many other countries, including our own.

There is simplicity, even austere living but no ghettos and starvation as such. At least, none has been evident to the eye of the visitor and the government insists its problems do not include unemployment and starvation.

One day the American party of 94 was taken to a 600-year-old temple now housing a museum of rare Chinese relics, the museum was full of chinese, mothers with children hanging onto their hands, small school children in the tow of teachers.

"How much does it cost to go to a museum in the United States?" a Chinese interpreter asked a group in the American party.

"Maybe a dollar and a half, maybe three dollars with inflation what it is," was the reply.

"Here admission is two cents," the interpreter said softly but proudly.

The Chinese are quick to call attention to the fact that they discourage commercialism.

No billboards mar the scenery of the countryside. There are no signs or advertisements in the athletic stadiums although it is rare not to see a huge sign with an exhortation from Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, such as' "United for one purpose, that is, the consolidation of the dictatorship of the proletariat. This must be fully achieved in every factory, village, office and school."

Admission to the stadium where the track and field events were held, was the equivalent to about 20 cents. It was a sellout overy day. But inside there were no hawkers peddling peanuts or penants.

The Americans, with their round eyes and different color eyes and skins, became the center of Chinese attention, bordering on awe.

But coupled with the curiosity was an unmistakable friendliness—a constant smile, a gesture of hospitality, a desire to be of assistance on the smallest detail.

This was particularly evident in the comfortable but not luxurious hotel. Everything was spotlessly clean. Large towels served as bed covers. Each night an attendent appeared at the door with a tray containing two bottles of beer or orange juice, peanuts, cakes and hot tea.

The food has been exotic, ranging from preserved deviled eggs to pickled duck tongue. It is a diet of low sugar content, rich in shrimp, pork and chicken dishes.

The athletes were permitted to vote before each meal whether they preferred American or Chinese fare. The result has run about 80 to 14 in favor of the latter.

Most of the American party's sightseeing has been prescribed—such things as the trade fair, museums and schools where acupuncture is practiced—but there has been ample opportunity to study at close hand the life in the new China.

In Canton, there are 600,000 bicycles—one for every five men, women and children. This constitutes a tremendous traffic problem. The only way vehicular traffic can move is for the driver to sit on his horn—thus a noise pollution dilemma.

Every young man or girl, after completing middle or junior high school, must spend two years on a farm or in a factory. The purpose is to protect against over-urbanization and possible creation of classes.

The country has become very physical education conscious, and the visit of table tennis, basketball. Swimming and now track and field teams is a reflection of China's interest on reaching an international stature in sports.

But the purpose, spokesmen with the government insist, is to bolster physical fitness.

Dodgers 'fall' to slip by Cubs

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

The Dodgers "fell down" on the job Monday night against the Cubs, but managed to "slip" by the Chicagoans, 3-2.

Bill Buckner was the hero as he returned to action for the second time since injuring an ankle April 18. Pinch-hitting for Tom Paciorek, Buckner lofted an eighth-inning sacrifice fly that brought in Steve Garvey with the winning run.

Before that, the Dodgers were playing something that could very well have been called "Whoops." Will Crawford fell down twice in right field pursuing flyballs. Paciorek started in then back and never looked sure of anything as he misplayed a ball hit by Jose Cardenal into a two-run double in the Cubs' eighth that tied the score.

The ball might have dropped in for a single, but it shouldn't have been a two bagger.

Joe Ferguson went down while running the bases. Fergie rounded third base in the fifth inning and as soon as he hit the grass outside the third baseline, he pancaked in front of the Dodger dugout.

" The grass is too long," Crawford explained when asked about his tumbles. "It never would happen if the grass was cut short. But they can't cut it short now or it would die."

Crawford furnished both the play of the evening and the quote of the evening. Chasing Bill Madlock's long drive in the fifth inning, Willie slipped and fell just as he got to the warning track. Sprawled on his back in front of the 385 foot sign in right center, he caught the ball!

"Man, I was just runnin' for the ball," he drawled, "and all of a sudden my feet went right on by me."

For Buckner, it was a thrill just to get into a game again. In his first at-bat last Friday, he hit into a double-play.

" This has been the longest month of my life," he said. "I'd sit at home soaking the ankle for half an hour and then pace around the apartment for an hour and then soak my ankle for another half hour. Doing that five or six times a day gets old quick."

Although the injury has never been called anything but a severely sprained ligament, Buckner apparently suffered ligament or tendon damage or both.

"It still hurts," he admitted. "But it's getting better. "There's so much tape on it I can hardly feel anything when I run on it. It doesn't feel like Bill Buckner running. It feels like I'm running on one leg."

Buckner, who hadn't faced anything faster than batting practice pitching, said Oscar Zamora's first pitch looked like it was coming "100 miles an hour."

Buckner's sacrifice fly allowed Jim Brewer (3-1) to pick up the win with an inning and a third of relief.

Starter Doug Rau pitched one of his best games giving up two runs (on Cardenal's hokey double) and five hits in 7 2/3 innings.

Rau didn't realize he had pitched as well as he did until a writer told him he struck out eight and didn't walk anyone. When asked how he rated Monday's performance against others this year, he replied, "about number three. Did I strike out eight? I didn't realize that," he said. Maybe I pitched better than I thought."

The slender left hander said his curve was his best pitch the first five or six innings and then his changeup helped him.

"I'm really surprised I didn't walk anybody," Rau said. "I threw an awful lot of sinking pitches. But I had a real good curve tonight although ironically it was a curve that Cardenal hit."

Rau revealed he almost joined the lengthy list of Dodgers on the sick or injured list.

..I had flu shots just before the game," he said. I had the flu two days ago and then when I woke up yesterday (Sunday) I thought I was having a relapse. When I got on base and had to run I could feel my legs dragging me and I was sweating hard."

Rau singled in the first Dodger run of the game, knocking in Paciorek who had doubled in the fifth inning. Crawford doubled in the sixth and scored the second run on Cey's hit.

The Dodgers didn't get a baserunner against starter Rick Reuschel until the fourth when Crawford singled with one out.

Rau faced only three over the minimum 21 batters through seven innings. In the eighth, Don Kessinger beat out an infield hit with one out.

Rau got pinch-hitter George Mitterwald to pop out. But Manny Trillo singled and Cardenal got his lucky double. But it was Cardenal who took the Cubs out of what might have been a bigger inning.

Brewer walked Rick Monday and Jerry Morales grounded to short, but Monday beat the throw and Morales was credited with a hit. However, Cardenal thought it was a force at second base and rounded third and was thrown out Cey to Lee Lacy to Ferguson.

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (7-2) pitches against former UCLA ace Bill Bonham tonight (7:30 p.m.).

The Dodgers now have beaten the Cubs eight times in a row dating back to last June 8.

Dave Lopes, who jammed an ankle Sunday, did not play.

Hostetler, Moskau honored

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

Valley baseball coaches discussed playoffs and selected junior college and four-year college players of the year at the weekly luncheon meeting at the Castaway Restaurant Monday.

Dave Hostetler of Citrus College was chosen JC Player of the Year and Paul Moskau of Azusa Pacific was named College Player of the Year.

Hostetler, a 6-4, 215-pound freshman first baseman batted .351, hit eight home runs, scored 29 runs and had 44 runs batted in in 39 games.

Moskau, a 6-2, 210-pound junior, starred as both a pitcher and a hitter for APC. Although not having pitched competitively since 1971, the husky righthander posted a 10-5 record with the Cougars and struck out 131 while walking only 61 in 117 innings. His earned run average was a neat 2.08.

At bat, Moskau hit .411 and set school records with 19 home runs, 85 hits and 54 runs scored. He batted in 60 runs in 50 games, and struck out only six times.

Moskau's achievements also had enabled him to become the first player ever to win both categories of the Progress Bulletin Hitting, Pitching Derby for four-year colleges.

Quoting the coaches:

BEN HINES La Verne — "We had a very good week and won six out of seven games to get where we are (NAIA District III Champions). We got momentum out of winning the mini-tournament at Azusa Pacific Monday. We got (Jimmy) Lentine and (Mike) Pagnotta back and they gave us punch in the lower part of our batting order.

"The players made a tremendous comeback after losing, 20-19, to Claremont-Mudd Thursday night. They beat a good Cal St. Dominguez team Friday afternoon and then were just absolutely fantastic in beating Point Loma (15-14) in Saturday's completion of Friday's suspended game in which we were trailing 14-9 with one out in the ninth inning.

"We took batting practice Saturday until just before the game started so our bats were still hot. We scored five runs to tie it and won it in the 10th.

"The kids were just fantastic. They wore "rally caps." Nick Leyva had them turn their caps inside out and we all wore them that way. It's just an example of the spirit they have."

BILL ARCE, Claremont-Mudd — "I want to contest the use of the word, "miracle," in describing La Verne's win. Players that talented have that kind of ability. Dan Quisenberry's pitching was the miracle. He pitched 2 1/3 innings Thursday night, nine innings Friday afternoon, pitched a third of an inning at 3:45 p.m. Saturday and came back to pitch nine against us at 8 p.m.

"We obviously conceded the 5 p.m. game Saturday. I felt we had to. We were going with a pitching staff with no tournament or four-year school experience prior to this year.

"I think Point Loma coach Carroll Land acquitted himself very well under some trying conditions and rules interpretations. I still don't understand the curfew that was placed on the 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. games (Friday) and then withdrawn."

TOM NELSON, Azusa Pacific — Paul Moskau is the most outstanding player I've ever coached. He is a fantastic athlete and an outstanding young man."

JOHN SCOLINOS, Cal Poly — "We just got back from our trip to Hawaii. We won two and lost four there. The University of Hawaii really has a good team. They had a 42-12 record this year. They just treated us great. We took a squad of 32 players that included some jayvees."

SKIP CLAPROOD, Citrus — "We haven't played in 12 days and are anxious to see some action. We have 16 freshman players on our team in the Northern Division part of the State JC Tournament.

"The other three teams are Canada, San Mateo and Fresno City College. Chabot, the number one team in the state, didn't make it. I don't know whether being a southern team playing in the norther division is an advantage or disadvantage.

"Jim Arkison (6-1) will start the first game. Ron Walton (10-2) the second and we've pencilled in John Field in the third one. However (Eric) Mustad may see some action.

"We have three players from Claremont starting. Shortstop Todd Ervin hit .343 and when he's healthy, we're healthy. Gary Bach (.303) is at second and Jim Ayres (.328) is in the outfield. Walnut's Greg Johnson (.388) is also one of our outfielders.

"We batted .303 as a team, the third year in a row our team average was over .300. We've achieved six of the eight goals we set at the beginning of the season and have two to go."

ART MAZMANIAN, Mt. San Antonio — "We were disappointed we didn't win our playoff with Cerritos. But we're co-champions. I've never been more proud of a team. They've been a real pleasure to coach. Mike Parkinson was outstanding at second (He hit .360 in league and .346 overall).

"The way we lost to Cerritos in the playoff (umpire's batter interference call) is a tough pill to swallow. Instead of 7-6 our favor, it made the score, 6-6 and they went on to win.

"Larry Pekarcik, who signed with the Reds, may play at Billings, Montana."

St. Pete gets new ball park

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The City Council has approved plans to build a new Al Lang Field on the site of the existing stadium opened in 1947. Since 1962, the field has been shared by the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Mets.

The rebuilding job means the Cards and Mets will play their 1976 St. Petersburg exhibition games at Campbell Park, which is about two miles southwest of Al Lang Field.

Remy shows power

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jerry Remy called upon all the power in his 5-foot-9, 160-pound body and flexed his muscles as he sauntered into the California Angels dugout.

"It certainly was a surprise," said the 22-year-old rookie, whose first major league homor highlighted the California Angels' 12-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians Monday night.

"I was just trying to get the ball through the infield and then all of a sudden it took off," he continued.

Angels Manager Dick Williams had nothing but praise for the Someset, Mass., resident.

"That little kid is doing a heck of a job," Williams said. "He pivots well. He's not afraid of the patter of little feet and tonight we found out that he can hit the long ball."

Remy's homer came in the fourth inning with Morris Nettles and Billy Smith aboard. It followed Bob Alliet-ta's scoring on Smith's single and Dave Chalk's scoring on a sacrifice fly and gave the Angels an 8-5 advantage.

"I expected to get the silent treatment when I got into the dugout," said Remy. "But instead everybody was up and feeling my muscle. (Joe) Lahoud told me that I didn't have too many to go to catch (Hank) Aaron."

The rally chased loser Don Hood, 1-2, and started a march of relievers Jim Perry and Dave LaRoche to the mound.

The Angels jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning when Remy scored on Chalk's triple and Lee Stanton hit a two-run homer.

The Indians tied it 3-3 in the second when Frank Robinson doubled home Rico Carty, and Buddy Bell singled home Robinson and Charlie Spikes.

GREG BALLARD

Ballard gets honor at Oregon

EUGENE, Ore. — Greg Ballard, the Garey High product who was the 1973 Valley High School Basketball Player of the Year, has been selected as the University of Oregon's Doyle Higdon Award recipient for 1975.

The award is given to the sophomore athlete at Oregon who best exemplifies the qualities of scholarship and athletic abilities. The award is named in honor of former UO football and track star Doyle Higdon, who was killed in an industrial accident between his sophomore and junior years at the University.

The list of previous winners includes such outstanding athletes as world class track man Steve Prefontaine (1971), running back Don Reynolds (1973) and All-America basketball player Ron Lee (1974).

Ballard led the Ducks in rebounding this past season, grabbing 288 caroms in 30 games for a 9.5 average. He was also the club's second-leading scorer behind Lee, averaging 14 points an outing.

Greg shot 49 per cent from the field and 74 per cent from the line during his sophomore year.

Ryan, Dent win honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Nolan Ryan of the California Angels and shortstop Bucky Dent of the Chicago White Sox were named co-players of the week for the period ending May 18. American League president Lee MacPhail announced Monday.

Ryan, 8-1, won both his decisions last week, pitching a twohitter against the New York Yankees and blanking the Baltimore Orioles for 8 1-3 innings before needing relief help.

Jones dazzles Cardinals

By The Assoc. Press

You have to be a pretty good pitcher to lose 20 games in one season in the major leagues, and Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres is proving he's a very good pitcher indeed.

Jones dazzled the St. Louis Cardinals Monday night, stopping the Redbirds on just one single as the Padres eked out a 1-0 victory on John Grubb's 10th inning home run, his first of the year. The only hit for St. Louis was a leadoff single by Luis Melendez in the seventh inning.

"It was the best game of my career because of all the ground balls the Cardinals hit," said Jones, a 25-year-old lefthander who one year ago led the major leagues with 22 defeats but is now 5-2 with a sparkling 1.80 earned run average for 1975.

Against the Cardinals, Jones recorded 22 of his 30 outs on ground balls. He also struck out three.

Jones conceded the no-hitter was on his mind.

"I was thinking about the nohitter after I got them out in the sixth inning," he said.

It was not to be. Melendez broke it up with a sharp single up the middle.

"Melendez hit a good pitch, a low sinker," said Jones. "The hit didn't really upset me. After he got it I thought, 'Well, now I've got to get the shutout.'"

He did, retiring 12 of the remaining 13 batters before Grubb sent the crowd of 10,111 at San Diego Stadium home happy.

Elsewhere in the National League, the San Francisco Giants beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-4, the Houston Astros defeated the Philadelphia Phils 4-2 and the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the Chicago Cubs 3-2.

Cardinals starter John Curtis came close to matching Jones. He allowed only five hits before Grubb reached him for the game-winning homer with one out in the 10th.

And Jones said it was a good thing Grubb's homer came when it did. "I probably couldn't have lasted more than another inning," he said.

Jones walked three in pitching his third shutout of the season.

The Padres have never had a no-hitter in their seven-year history.

After Melendez spoiled Jones' no-hit bid, he took second on Ted Simmons' bouncer. But that was as far as he got as Ken Reitz and Danny Cater grounded out.

It was the second straight shutout against St. Louis, which pounded out 23 hits and scored 17 runs Saturday against San Francisco. Jim Barr of the Giants blanked the Cards on two hits Sunday.

Jones, 6 feet tall and 180 pounds, came to the Padres early in the 1973 season and posted a 7-6 record and a 3.15 ERA. Last season was a disappointment, as his record dipped to 8-22 and his ERA ballooned to 4.46.

But it was a valuable learning experience for the young left-hander, and the Padres hierarchy, recognizing his potential, stayed with him. He's paying dividends now, having allowed just 13 earned runs in 65 innings and established himself as one of the brightest young pitchers in the National League.

Giants 6, Pirates 4

Mike Caldwell, given a vote of confidence by San Francisco Manager Wes Westrum, posted his first victory after five defeats with a complete-game effort against the Pirates, and helped himself with a three-run double in the fourth inning.

Astros 4, Phils 2

Bob Watson's eighth home run of the season, tying him with Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski for the National League lead, plus a trio of unearned runs helped Houston snap the Phils' seven-game win streak.

Watson has driven in seven of the Astros' last 12 runs, five on Sunday and two Monday night.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox trounced the Oakland A's 10-5, the New York Yankees downed the Kansas City Royals 5-1, the Chicago White Sox edged the Baltimore Orioles 2-1 and the Detroit Tigers whipped the Minnesota Twins 6-3. Milwaukee and Texas were not scheduled.

Red Sox 10, A's 5

Speedy Juan Beniquez scored the tie-breaking run all the way from first base on Rick Burleson's hit-and-run single in the seventh inning. Beniquez drew a one-out walk from Blue Moon Odom and came all the way around on Burleson's single to right-center. A walk to Carl Yastrzemski and doubles by Jim Rice and Dwight Evans added three more runs.

"It was just one of those nights," said Oakland Manager Alvin Dark. "We didn't look good. We just couldn't pick up the ball."

Sokolowski leads Post 78

Paul Sokolowski hit his second home run in two days Monday night to power Claremont Post 78 to a 6-1 American Legion victory over Pomona Post 30.

Sokolowski's two-run shot in the first inning was all that was needed by Claremont pitchers Mil Pompa and Dave Aguilera, as they held Pomona to four hits.

Pompa got the win, striking out seven and giving up two hits in five innings before yielding to Aguilera.

Claremont scored three times in the fifth inning without a hit. Mike Davis opened the frame with a walk and Charley Granger was hit by a pitch. Dave Cervantes then sacrificed the runners to second and third before Rob Haerr walked to load the bases.

Pomona pitcher Dean Fritchell then issued free passes to Mark Leanord Peacock and Tim Hilton, forcing in two runs. Mark Robertson lifted a fly to left which was dropped for an error, scoring the third run of the inning.

Pomona recorded its lone tally in the sixth inning on a triple by Mike Forsyth and a single by Rob Franklin.

Claremont will face Rowland Heights at Rowland High Wednesday at 5:30 p.m., while Pomona

'Pack golfers reach finals

Claremont High's golf squad qualified Monday for the CIF finals to be held June 2 at Corona National.

The Wolfpack finished third at Monday's 33-team CIF qualifying round at Western Hills Country Club in Chino. Ron Skaggs' golfers shot a 305 total to earn the right to face seven other teams at the finals in two weeks.

Scott Sullivan led the Claremont squad with a one-over-par 73. John Mack and Chuck Rosin each shot 77 on the 18-hole course, while Steve Ashton and Frank Sowin took 78 strokes apiece.

Halfway house for Viets

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Richard Gilbert is operating an unusual halfway house for Vietnamese refugees preparing for new lives in the United States.

The first stop for refugees, Camp Pendleton Marine Base, is crowded with more than 18,000 Vietnamese and Cambodians. Most are waiting for sponsors or security clearances.

Gilbert's halfway house, for at least 20 of them, is next.

Gilbert said he got involved in the project when his church deacon, Joe Alvin, asked him if he knew where some refugees could be housed.

"He was thinking about taking some of them into his house and I was thinking about taking some of them into mine," said Gilbert. "Then I said, why not try to find a place for them where they can be to themselves?"

Gilbert, a vending machine distributor, rented a furnished four-bedroom house in the nearby town of Oceanside and he and Alvin split the rental cost, $250 a month.

Gilbert and his wife, Marcella, added a king-size bed, their television set and a washing machine to the already furnished home.

"They want to do anything they can to work and contribute to the economy," he said. "I got one of them a job Saturday as a busboy. He's a chemist, but he's willing to do anything."

Gilbert said he and Alvin set up the halfway house "to give the refugees some place to come until they get themselves squared around."

Most of them plan to settle with friends and relatives in other parts of the United States. Some are contemplating making the Oceanside home their permanent residence, and if that happens, Gilbert says he may organize another halfway house.

$4 million claim filed against Pomona

A claim of more than $4 million aginst the city was presented to the Pomona City Council Monday night by George Pardee, president of the Pardee Construction Co.

The claim charges the city has reneged on its commitments concerning the company's 413-lot Shadow Hills development on the old Phillips Ranch property in the Westmont area of west Pomona.

Pardee, in written communication to the council, charged that since approving the development in December of 1971, the city has adopted ordinances preventing the company from completing the housing project.

Primarily at issue is a 1972 ordinance that increased the minimum square footage for all housing developments in the city. Pardee claimed that the cost to alter the homes' square footage is prohibitive.

The development has been a source of almost constant controversy in the last three years due to the small size of the homes, the grading of the hillside location and the development's effect on the adjacent Westmont area.

To date only 62 homes have been built.

On Feb. 3 this year, the council enacted a four-month moratorium on construction at the site pending the completion of a master plan of land use for the area.

The original tract maps for the development have expired.

The council took no action and made no comment concerning Pardee's claim, and referred the matter to the city attorney.

In other business, the council awarded a $133,000 contract to the Laird Construction Co. for a construction project on Philadelphia Street between Garey and Towne Avenues.

The project, which will be financed with federal funds and gas taxes, will include reconstruction of existing paving, some curb and gutter replacement, street lights and a minor storm drain.

The council approved a resolution concerning the paving of alleys in the city. The resolution calls for the city to pay half the costs, with the property owners contributing the other half.

Joining with the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, the council went on record opposing the Santa Fe Railroad's proposed closure of its freight office in Pomona.

The city's oppostion will be sent to the Public Utilities Commission, which will be considering the railroad's proposal.

The council gave final approval to the city's Community Development Block Grant application, which is expected to bring some $2.8 million in federal funds to the city during the next three years.

The application had been given tentative approval in February after a series of community workshops.

The first year's funding of $395,000 is expected to be utilized for a number of projects including a home improvement loan fund, beautification projects, development of Barjud Park, street lights, and walkway ramps for the handicapped at the civic center.

Work to start in 30 days

Chino civic site job awarded

An Upland firm has been awarded a contract to build a two-story county structure in the new Chino Civic Center.

The Berry Construction Co., Inc., Monday submitted the low bid of $1,417,249, which was $200,000 below the county's estimate. Work will start within 30 days, with the project taking 13 months to complete.

The county building, with 46,000 square feet of floor space, will house two municipal courtrooms plus offices for various county agencies. It also will include holding cells for prisoners and an overhead ramp connecting the structure with Chino's new police station.

The civic center is a joint project with the City of Chino, which plans to build a city hall and police station on the 11 acre site between Central and Chino avenues and Sixth and D streets. This will be adjacent to an existing county branch library.

The Berney Construction, Inc., of Irvine, recently submitted a low bid of $2,046,683 for the two city structures. City officials said they must first sell bonds to finance construction of their buildings.

County Supervisor Robert Townsend was particulary pleased Monday with the low bid being less than county officials had estimated. "This is tangible proof that with desire and determination, it is possible to cut costs with absolutely no detrimental effect on theproject."

County public work officials credited a new procedure started by Townsend with much of the savings. The procedure, which calls for use of performance plans and specifications rather than the usual preliminary plans and specifications, aids the contractor by providing flexibility to take advantage of periodic changes in the costs of different building materials.

The county will finance the project with federal revenue sharing funds which have already been included in the present budget.

Loren Stone, president of the Chino Civic Center Joint Powers Authority, praised the county's action Monday. "Although this county project is not financed by the authority, we have been very much concerned about its progress as it is a large part of the project.

"On behalf of the authority, I would like to express thanks to Supervisor Townsend for taking on the project and finalizing it through hard work and many hours of meetings with city and county officials," added Stone.

In a realted matter, supervisors authorized the payment of $1,600 to relocate a tortilla factory and $270 to relocate the Chino Neighborhood House. Both are presently located in buildings that will be demolished for the civic center project.

Pomona has a new job referral agency

A new federally funded job referral agency has begun operation in Pomona, patterned after a successful trial program in Monrovia.

The new agency, Re-Employment Action Committee, opened Monday at 130 E. First St.

Field representative Ron Monello said the agency will be contacting employers throughout the area, attempting to find job openings that have not been listed with the state employment office or private agencies.

A similar program begun in Monrovia in 1973, he explained, was very successful in locating jobs in that community. The program was an outgrowth of congressman John Rousselot's, R-26th Dist., commission on human resources.

The Pomona office, and a similar office in Azusa, are funded under Title I of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act through Citrus College in Azusa.

The agencies job referral service is available to all interested persons. Office hours will be 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Persons may call the Pomona office at (714) 622-6777, or the Azusa office at (213) 969-2415.

Walnut planning three new schools and center

A high school, an intermediate school, an elementary school and an administrative center all are in planning stages in the Walnut school district.

School board members Monday night approved the following:

—An advance planning application for state funds for the high school, to be located in Diamond Bar in the vicinity of the Orange Freeway and Pathfinder Road on a 40-acre site.

—Site purchase and an advance planning application for the district administration and services center on 7.3 acres near the Glenwick site in Walnut.

—Building application for the new elementary school on the Glenwick site at Lycoming Street and Lemon Road. The application will be for 15,300 square feet of kindergarten to sixth grade classroom space, and administration, multi-purpose and related support area space.

—Building application for conversion of Walnut Elementary School to house the continuation high school and relocation of nine portable units from Walnut to the Glenwick site.

Board members selected Chaparral as the name of the new intermediate school to be built in The Hills residential development in Diamond Bar.

They awarded a contract for construction of the Cyrus J. Morris School in Walnut to Nick Pokrajac, Inc., on the basis of a low bid of $1,717,122. Five other companies also bid on the school. High bid was $1,869,000.

Stanley E. Nelson was awarded the contract to build a new swimming pool at Walnut High School. His bid was $274,421. Bids from six companies ranged from that amount to $329,500.

State funds will be sought for construction of an adjacent building to house rest rooms, dressing rooms, storage and equipment.

In addition to construction of the pool itself, costs will include the architect's fee, plan checking, material tests and inspection, making a total of $304,248.

Available funding consists of $50,000 from the City of Walnut, $68,605 from Los Angeles County, between $75,000 and $100,000 in state school building funds, and between $110,643 and $85,643 in the district's special reserve fund.

Mimic to give show for kids

Randy Kovitz, Claremont High graduate and a student at Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, will present a special after-school mime program for children of all ages Wednesday at 4 p.m. at the Claremont Public Library.

Kovitz developed a fascination for the special technique when he was 14.

Victim of home fire, blasts dies

The Pomona woman burned over 90 per cent of her body when fire and explosions demolished her home early Monday, died today at County-USC Medical Center in Los Angeles.

Pomona firemen said this morning the cause of the fire still is under investigation.

The victim, Velma Levada Callaway of 809 S. Regene St., was given emergency treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital before being transferred to the medical center where she was listed in critical condition.

The fire and two explosions occurred at 1 a.m. A neighbor, Ernest Britton, suffered minor chest and back burns when he used his body to smother flames burning the woman's clothing.

Chino teens to plead for principal

A group of Chino High School students will present a petition to the Board of Education tonight in an attempt to keep Principal Terry L. Terril from leaving their school.

The petition, containing about 400 signatures, will be presented at the 7 p.m. meeting by Sandy Briones, Shawna Smith and Isabel Espinosa, organizers of a student campaign to retain Terril.

Terril's resignation is effective Aug. 15, but Miss Briones says she hopes he will change his mind, and remain as principal.

The petitions, addressed to board members and Terril, say "Keep the Doc," and "Dr. Terril, Not to Resign."

Miss Briones, a sophomore, says Terril relates well to the students, and "We can go to him with our problems." She adds that his door is always open.

A number of other students are expected to support the three campaign organizers at the board meeting.

In other business, the board is expected to consider a major bond drive for a Nov. 4 ballot. Supt. Royce Lapp is asking trustees for a decision to begin planning for the drive.

Open house Thursday

Pomona P.D. will play host to public

Thursday will be open house at the Pomona Police Department, and Chief F.P. Wallick invited all residents to a "behind the scenes" tour of the facilities.

The Pomona City Council recently proclaimed the period through Sunday as Police Week in Pomona. The theme, "100 Years of Service," marks Pomona's Centennial celebration.

One of the features of the open house will be a display of the latest home security devices available to homeowners who are worried about the rising incidence of house burglaries. Officers will be on hand to demonstrate how the systems work and to give tips on how citizens can better protect their homes.

Other displays and exhibits are planned, including an extensive narcotics display, a police car, micro film displays and other scientific methods used in modern law enforcement.

Tours of the police building will begin at 1 p.m. and will be conducted on the hour and half-hour by police officers.

Damien debaters rated state's best

Senior debaters Bob Mocharnuk and Paul Hudson of Damien High School in La Verne have been chosen the outstanding high school debate team in California.

They earned this honor during competitions this month at Cal Poly Pomona sponsored by the California High School Speech Association. Forty-nine debate teams from throughout California were finalists in the competition.

Mocharnuk and Hudson discussed possible changes in methods of selecting presidential and vice presidential candidates for national elections.

This is the third time Damien debaters have won the state title. Mocharnuk and Hudson will go to Indianapolis, Ind., in June to participate in national speech competitions.

They will be accompanied by William Ruckerts of Pomona, a Damien student who has qualified for nationals in Student Congress.

Damien speech coaches are Barbara Busse and Michael Higelin.

Damien sent a second debate team to the state finals. Members were Mark Beltramo and Mark Fabiani, 1974-75 champions of the Citrus Belt Speech Region, an organization of 27 high schools.

L.V. budget shows big deficit

A $3 million tentative budget, showing a deficit of more than $212,000, is under study by the La Verne City Council.

The budget, calling for an expenditure of $3,014,982 for the next fiscal year, is up 9 per cent over last year. The council accepted the budget for study and set 7:30 p.m., May 28, for official consideration.

City Manager George Caswell said the proposed expenditures were up about $250,000 from those of the current year, but the only addition was a proposal to hire four firemen to man the fire station which is expected to be completed in the summer in La Verne Heights.

"The budget does not even reflect salary increases," the city manager said. "The council will have to determine how much of a raise to grant, and how we can raise the money."

The budget does not include any reserves, either. While Caswell said there will be a dwindling surplus left from the current year, he did not include it in his calculations.

He said the city expects to realize about $2,790,000 in income next year if it does not increase its current tax rate of $2.2835 per $100 of assessed valuation.

"The council will have to decide whether to cut the proposed expenditures, or to raise the tax rates," Caswell said. "We simply don't expect any big boosts in revenues this year."

The budget includes expenditures of $764,740 by the self-supporting water department, up $67,000 from the current year; $469,765 by the police department, up $28,000; $270,138 by the fire department, up $72,000; and $390,924 by the street department, up $35,000.

Caswell said all of those increases, except for the four new firemen to be hired in July, were due to inflation.

At its session next week, the council will go over the proposed expenditures without the department heads. Then it will begin a series of budget sessions giving separate consideration to each department.

The annual budget must be completed by June 30, according to the state law.

In an unrelated matter, the council told a roomful of residents that there was nothing it could do to stop the David and Margaret Home from establishing living quarters for its wards in the 3400 block of Winterhaven Drive.

The home for wayward and neglected girls has bought a house there and has moved six of its wards into the neighborhood under the supervision of two house mothers.

The neighbors protested, contending that the establishment of such quarters there would be detrimental to the neighborhood.

But City Atty. Wynne Furth said the home had a legal right to set up living quarters in a residential neighborhood.

Spokesmen for the home said only those girls who were "ready for the move" would be allowed to live away from the institution. They contended that they are currently operating three such homes — one in La Verne, and two in San Dimas — and they have received no complaints.

Mayor Mike M. Morales told the residents and representatives of the home to get together and try to work out their differences among themselves.

Is patriotism out of style?

If designating May 1 as "Loyalty Day," as Congress did some years ago, was supposed to be this country's answer to the Communists' traditional May Day celebrations, the reply has been less than deafening.

For example, a crowd counted in the hundreds—the low hundreds — turned out for this year's Loyalty Day parade in Cleveland. True, it was held on a Sunday (why disrupt weekday traffic just for a parade?) and nobody in his right mind comes downtown when he doesn't have to. Yet it's a sign of something.

Even less observed this year was the 30th anniversary of the end of the European phase of World War II. If there were any major observances, we weren't aware of them. Much more note of this anniversary was taken in Europe, which of course has more reason for remembering that war than does the United States.

But far and away the champion observer of VE Day, not just this year but every year, is the Soviet Union, which has more reason than anybody for remembering.

It is not only that the Russian soul bears an ineradicable scar from the war in which one of every seven Russians fell. To the Communists, history is more than merely the record of what happened — it is a tool, a means to an end. Thus, victory in the "Great Patriotic War" is celebrated not just as the defeat of one particular enemy at one particular time in history but as one more step in the preordained triumph of world socialism.

As Soviet defense minister Andrei Grechko wrote for the World Marxist Review:

"The war and the victory that crowned it demonstrated the fundamental superiority of the new, socialist type of army over the army of exploiter society . . .

"German fascism's doom was sealed with its attack against the most advanced social system, for the birth and development of socialism to replace the old, obsolescent bourgeois society is an inevitable and inexorable process. There is no halting it. It is a law of history . . . "

In recent years, in the interests of detente, the Russians have toned down some of their anniversary rhetoric. They no longer claim that the Soviet Union defeated both Germany and Japan virtually singlehandedly. Their confidence in the ultimate triumph of socialism, however, remains undiminished.

In contrast, in this country, one hears little but denigration of the present and despair about the future of a nation whose citizens enjoy freedoms, not to mention material blessings, the ordinary Russian can only dream of.

Or, just as bad, a state governor and potential president opines that we fought "the wrong enemy" in World War II — and then attempts to backpaddle by explaining that he didn't mean Hitler (and no doubt confirming the Russians in their belief that Germany's attack in 1941 was part of a capitalistic plot).

It can be argued that Americans have always been embarrassed, and not a little suspicious, of too much of a display of patriotism. Yet we seem to have gone to the other extreme in recent years.

It isn't that nobody turns out for Loyalty Day parades. This is mostly want of planning, not want of loyalty. It is something far more worrisome.

Where are our counterparts to the Andrei Grechkos, who believe with every fiber of their being in the superiority of their system and their ideology? Where is the American statesman who tells us in a way that makes us believe it that human freedom is the inexorable tide of history?

When we stop believing in freedom, we have taken a fateful step toward not having it.

Speaking from experience

In a pious but remarkably ungloating comment on the fall of Saigon, the official Soviet news agency, Tass, had this to say:

"The events in South Vietnam again confirm the truth that in the present time a regime that rests only on foreign bayonets is utterly nonviable."

The Soviets are much too modest about their accomplishments. The regime in Hungary, for instance, is resting quite securely on foreign bayonets (guess whose) and has been since at least 1956. So is the one in Czechoslovakia. So are those in East Germany, Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia . . .

Penalized by experience

Dear Editor: Age discrimination is the most pervasive discrimination of all. EVEN CONGRESS DOES IT! Congress has given the people all sorts of anti-discrimination legislation — for minorities, even for women — Equal Employment Opportunity, Fair Employment Practices, Affirmative Action, etc, etc. But for people over 40 there is only the unenforced and unenforceable act of 1967, which did not even result in a test case until 1973.

The point I wish to make is that Age Discrimination affects all of us. Older people are not a minority — we ALL get old. Now, then, how does Affirmative Action work? If a company decides it must hire blacks, they hire young blacks. If a company is compelled to employ women, it hires young women. And no one ever hires anyone over 40 no matter how well qualified.

When I was president of a corporation, I decided to hire some commission salesman — with a bare $600 per month guarantee. I got over 300 replies, most from college graduates of age 45 to 55. These people were being penalized for experience! If they had their college degree minus 20 years experience, their starting pay would have been twice that!

Alright, now it is my turn. I have had eight years of college and 30 years of experience. But I have been unemployed for four years. Each week I reply to five or six advertisements. Each month I get an interview or two. And that has gone on for four years. Oh, I am not idle! There are plenty of jobs for people willing to contribute their efforts with no guaranty of a return. I have sold real estate, life insurance, mutual funds. And my average income has been about $1,200 per year. So I would love to qualify for a $600 per month job. But I cannot, as I am too old.

I enjoyed reading the life story of Solzhenitzen. Can you believe it? Even when he was 45 or 55 years old, even as an "enemy of the state", he always had a job! Things must be better in Russia than in the USA! I know a lot of older people who would willingly go there. Oh to live in a country that takes care of its own people! — Robert S. Campbell, Upland.

Student vets play hookey

WASHINGTON — Uncle Sam has shelled out a whopping $329.6 million to students who apparently pocketed the money and then played hookey.

They are Vietnam veterans who have been collecting their educational benefits, it seems, without bothering to go to school.

The House Veterans Committee has quietly ordered the General Accounting Office to investigate the massive overpayments and to recommend ways to get back the misspent funds.

The veterans who have been ripping off the taxpayers, meanwhile, could be prosecuted. They have taken advantage of a tax law, which was intended to permit veterans to begin their education without waiting around for the wherewithal. Under the law, the government benefit checks must be sent out before the veterans start their classes.

Some schools, particularly community colleges, abet the culprits by permitting them to skip classes and still remain listed as students entitled to federal benefits.

In many states, it pays colleges to keep students on the rolls who don't attend classes, because the amount of state support depends upon the size of the enrollment.

In Maryland, for example, an investigation disclosed that 145 veterans at one community college never completed a single course during the 1974 spring semester. Yet 71 received fulltime benefits of at least $270 per month.

At another Maryland school, one veteran was allowed to keep signing up for classes for five semesters, although he never has completed a single course. He still is enrolled in the college and, of course, still collects his monthly government check.

Another student, according to the investigative report, was asked why he was enrolling in the same course he had taken the previous semester. "You get your money," he replied, "so why should you care how I use my entitled benefits?"

What has happened in Maryland, according to other state education officials, is going on throughout the nation. The scandal may compel a return to former, tighter controls. Government enforcement officials meanwhile, have recovered only $197.3 million of the misspent $329.6 million.

JACKIE'S SETTLEMENT: Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, the toast of the jet set, may get a generous $20.5 million settlement from her late husband's estate.

This is the amount, according to sources close to the late shipping tycoon, which was transferred from London to New York City for the settlement.

We couldn't determine, however, whether Jackie will get the full amount. At least one source close to the negotiations doubts it. Heiress Christina Onassis, who dislikes Jackie, "isn't about to give her anything like $20.5 million," said the source.

The late Aristotle Onassis left no will but left the keys to his financial empire with his daughter Christina, according to our sources. Christina discussed a financial settlement with Jackie in London a few days ago. Thereafter, $20.5 million of the Onassis fortune was transferred by Chase Manhattan Bank from London to New York City where it was put into the account of the Milbank, Tweed, Hadley and McCloy law firm, our sources say.

At this writing, less than $900,000 has been transferred into Jacqueline's account at the First National City Bank. But Onassis executives have been conferring with bank officials, according to our sources, about a large transfer.

Jackie's attorney, Alexander Forger of the Milbank, Tweed firm, refused to discuss the details of the negotiations. We also were unable to get any formal comment from the Onassis office. Spokesmen for both Chase Manhattan and First National City banks had nothing to say.

FORD'S DILEMMA: President Ford ordered the rescue of the merchant ship Mayaguez against the advice of his legal experts.

They cautioned him that, contrary to his public statement, the ship's capture was not "piracy." Under international law, they said, Cambodia had a legal right to seize the ship after it steamed within the 12-mile-limit which Cambodia claims as its territorial waters.

The Mayaguez was only eight miles from the Cambodian islet of Poulo Wai when it was stopped.

Meanwhile, the Joint Chiefs gave President Ford their opinion that the ship could be rescued because of its isolated location off an islet some 35 miles from the Cambodian coast.

In the end, the President listened to his generals rather than his lawyers.

Scholars support police

As FBI director, J. Edgar Hoover frequently expressed his disdain for intellectuals. Often he would lump permissive college professors under the general heading of do-gooders who tended to undermine respect for laws and law enforcers.

Mr. Hoover would be surprised to see a recent roll call of scholars; they're rallying to the support of police! The lawman is getting support from a least likely source: scholars.

Chicago's police department has been accused of spying on citizens. The department's intelligence division maintained files on individuals not known to have committed any crime, and undercover police infiltrated organizations for the purpose of eavesdropping.

Legal scholars and constitutional experts affirm that none of these activities is illegal. Chicago police are further accused of resorting to burglary and unauthorized wiretapping to gain information; that is illegal.

But there are no legal restraints against legitimate police spying. One organization which had been infiltrated by the police protested that police should maintain files "only on organizations engaged in illegal activity."

A police spokesman responded, "How are we to know when an organization is engaged in illegal activity unless we investigate it?"

As for policemen infiltrating organizations, the department says it would be unconstitutional to prohibit police officers from joining any organization they want to join.

And again, the law scholars concur. After decades of legal preoccupation with the rights of wrongdoers, local lawmen are now given broad discretionary powers in the area of intelligence gathering.

A trend — such as a swing away from a tight rein toward a loose one — is something you "feel" before it can be measured.

When 1974's crime increase was announced by the FBI — a whopping escalation of 17 per cent, the worst in 14 years and worsening as the year ended — Atty. Gen. Ed Levi, in all ways a scholar, said, "Our system of criminal justice is a dismal and tragic failure.

"Unfortunately," he said, "these results are predictable because in many areas of our country only a small percentage of those arrested for a felony are convicted."

According to the attorney general's estimate, about one-third of all violent crimes go unreported, at least partly because of a criminal justice system which is often more punitive to the victim than to the criminal.

Historically, intellectuals have been highly allergic to lawmen. There are historical roots for this antipathy but apparently those considerations are now outweighed by the onrushing tyranny of lawlessness.

Just in jest

I swear to you, the benefits of civilization could well bring about civilization's downfall. Only recently, for instance, the town of Valdez, Alaska, almost became a disaster area. — And because when a fire gutted the storage area of the town's only general merchandise store, the citizens of that community suddenly found themselves in a unique state of emergency. The fire had destroyed the town's entire reserve stock of toilet paper. — Fortunately, however, another of civilization's great inventions saved the day. An emergency supply of tissue was flown in by cargo plane.

The blood of human kindness

"In many ways, our absurd and insane society looks to violence top to bottom." — Congressman Ronald Dellums (D.-Cal.)

Where, oh where would we be if there weren't politicians like Ron Dellums to put the distortions of the news media into proper perspective? Not that the man is heir to the tradition of Spiro Agnew. Hardly. Dellums has his own axes to grind.

Example No. 1: The California Congressman is a member of the board of directors of an organization with one of those pretentiously unpretentious titles — Compared to What, Inc. — which recently sponsored a fete-de-rock called Human Kindness Day in the nation's capital.

Human kindness? The casualty reports are still pouring in. An estimated 600 muggings, robberies and assorted acts of violence were carried out by roving gangs of young hoodlums on the grounds of the Washington Monument.

Some 86 victims were hospitalized, including one Steven Laine, a member of our absurd and insane society foolish enough to believe that the area around the monument, even when filled with 125,000 people and over 300 police, is a place where a law-abiding citizen can park his car on a spring afternoon in 1975.

Laine, a 46-year-old aide to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, was at the foot of the monument, moving through the crowd, when he was suddenly attacked from behind. He turned, only to be viciously and senselessly stabbed in the eye. He staggered through the crowd, pleading for help. But everyone being engrossed in human kindness, no help — not even a hand — was offered him, until he somehow made it to a Red Cross aid station several hundred yards away.

Laine will lose his eye, according to doctors, as reported by the media. And Congressman Dellums, as a sponsor of the event, a lawmaker, a citizen, has expressed outrage. But not so much at the incident, understand (though he does "condemn" violence), as at the fact that it was reported by "a media dominated by whites in a city dominated by blacks."

Six hundred muggings. Eighty-six hospitalizations. The loss of an eye. No arrests. What kind of press do we have in this absurd, insane society to report such incidentals? A racist press, of course, one given, says the Oracle of Oakland, to "inept, inadequate, narrow, one-sided and racist reporting."

Laine, you see, is white, as were most of the victims on Human Kindness Day. His assailants were black. It was a distinction perhaps inwardly noted but left unspoken by District of Columbia Councilman Douglas Moore, himself a black, who expressed "shock and outrage" at the violence, and called on Washington residents to help find Laine's assailants.

Ron Dellums, however, would direct attention elsewhere. "Many of you," he lectured a press conference about the time Councilman Moore was issuing his statement, "do not understand human kindness."

Example No. 2: Many of us? Well, apart from the Congressman's waving aside the importance of those 600 human victims in Washington, a question arises as to how much he understands about the subject of kindness and responsibility in his own backyard. Literally, his own backyard.

Case in point, the following news item, which appeared this past week. Dateline Oakland:

"The 17-year-old son of Rep. Ronald Dellums, D.-Calif., has been booked into Alameda County Juvenie Hall on charge of stealing the purse of an elderly woman.

"Probation department officials said yesterday that Michael Dellums was charged after he returned to the county senior boys' camp where he was serving a sentence for burglary. He had been free on a weekend pass.

"Police said the Congressman's son grabbed a purse from the woman and knocked her to the pavement Saturday night."

Now, of course, it isn't considered part of the Capitol Hill game to touch on such incidents. But when a tax-supported public official postures himself as a lecturer on humanity, his own credentials on the subject are certainly as subject to scrutiny as those of any other private citizen of this absurd and insane society.

It is a society, Ronald Dellums has charged, that "looks to violence top to bottom."

Maybe so. But tell us, if you will, Congressman, where have you been looking lately? Or is it "racist" to suggest that, black or white, human kindness — like charity — begins at home?

Check animals with itchy ears

DEAR DR. MILLER: Could an itchy-eared rabbit give a puppy who's a good friend of hers itchy ears too? — T.C.

DEAR T. C.: "Itchy Ears" might have mange mites, ringworm, or other problems possibly transmissible to the puppy. Your veterinarian should check them both out and treat at least one.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We simply can't bear the thought of leaving our cat home when we go to Japan this summer. What is required for us to be able to take her along? What about on the plane? — G. C.

DEAR G. C.: Yes, your cat can jaunt to Japan with you. She'll need a rabies certificate that's more than one month but less than five months old, plus a health certificate. If your cat's in a carrier, she can fly in the cabin with you. It's prudent to verify travel requirements and restrictions concerning pets a couple of months prior to such a trip, just in case carriers, companies or countries have recently changed regulations.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My wife's having a fit because she found out her dog has tapeworms. I already told her dog tapeworms don't kill dogs or bother people, but she's still upset about it. If you tell her, she'll believe it. If a dog wants to carry a few pets of its own around, so what? — J.F.

DEAR J. F.: While it's true that most common types of tapeworms in the United States are not likely to bother humans, dogs (and cats) can acquire the tapeworm Echinococcus granulosus. This tapeworm not only afflicts humans, but can cause dangerous hydatid cysts in Homo sapiens. While it's true a tapeworm doesn't kill a dog, it's definitely not the type of pet a pooch would pick if the pooch could pick a pet for himself. Certainly tapeworms don't make a dog healthier, and they definitely can complicate other conditions and make treatment and recovery from a variety of other problems more difficult. The two mistakes most commonly made concerning tapeworms are (1) to "allow" the dog to keep them, and (2) to attempt home-worming to get rid of them. Many home-worming products are not effective for tapeworms. Those that are available without a prescription and may be somewhat effective in removing tapeworms may also prove dangerous in use. The hospital is the place for tapeworming the dog, or cat, at least initially.

A motto for the alcoholic

Dear Ann Landers: I was especially interested in your advice to the "controlled" alcoholic because I was a drunk for nearly ten years. I'm 40 now and realize I'm still an alcoholic even though I haven't touched a drop since I started to go to A.A. at age 30.

I hope every person who has a drinking problem and thinks he can go off the wagon now and then, so long as he doesn't get bombed, will remember the motto that set me straight the first time I slipped. Please put it in bold type so they won't miss it: Here it is: "It doesn't matter if you're a big shot or a little shot. Take ONE shot — and YOU'RE shot." — Dry and Happy

Dear Happy: Beautiful! I hope thousands of "controlled alcoholics" will clip your motto and paste it in their hatbands. (And it wouldn't hurt to tape an extra copy to the bathroom mirror so you can see it every morning when you brush your teeth.)

Dear Ann Landers: Has anyone ever called you a female chauvinist sow? Well, a recent response you gave to babysitters qualifies you for that title. Your answer excluded us guys totally — a complete shutout.

I'm a 16-year-old high school junior and male. I babysit for two families who have sons. The little boys would much rather have a big guy around than a girl when their parents go out.

I've had experience taking care of baby brothers, so I can even diaper and feed my youngest "client" who is eight months old.

Apologize, will you? — Anti-Bias

Dear Anti: I'll do more than apologize. I'll RECOMMEND male sitters to parents who have adolescent sons. I did so several years ago and it turned out to be the ideal solution.

A mother wanted to know what to do about her 13-year-old son who insisted on a certain 16-year-old redheaded sitter. No one else would do. He started to nag his parents to "please go out and enjoy yourselves." My suggestion was, "Hire a GUY." They took my advice and wrote to say it solved the problem.

Dear Ann Landers: I think your advice is crazy but I'm writing anyway.

I'm a girl 16 and not sure if I prefer girls or boys. It all started when I was 12 and my parents were divorced. My mother was always stronger than my dad and she treated me more decent. He was a weakling and I actually hated him.

Dad drank heavily. When I started to date he used to beat me up a lot. Now I have a hard time liking boys or trusting them. Almost every guy I go with begins to remind me of my father after a while. I enjoy girls much more and am comfortable with them. Especially one. What's with me, anyhow? — Gay Or Not

Dear Miss 16: Although you think my advice is crazy, I'm answering anyway.

I believe you have a strong preference for girls and it started long before you began to date.

If you want to be straight, which I doubt, intensive therapy might help. I advice counseling in any event. You need to talk out your feelings about many things that come through in your letter loud and clear.

Mad about driving like mad

I like to think of it as, hem, the maturing process, but I find that as the years pass, I am becoming a more conservative and cautious driver. There are plenty of wild drivers on the road, and there are a lot of old drivers — but there are no wild, old drivers.

I no longer feel an urge to race every other car on the freeway; possibly my machismo is slipping. I am quite happy with the 55 speed limit, thank you. I drive in the slow lane, passed by buses (who isn't?) trucks, campers towing motorboats, highway patrol cars. I'll probably be rear-ended by a Mack truck one of these days, and me and my machismo will end up in the intensive care unit.

It is distressing to note, however, that many drivers today, mostly the young, still drive the way I did when I was their age. Presumably they have all passed driver-training in some high school or other, but they probably peeled rubber as they left the school parking lot with their safe-driving certificate clutched in one hand.

The young driver of today has learned to steer with the hand holding his cigarette and the milk shake carton in order to keep his other hand free for the blonde sharing the driver's seat with him. He has learned to zig-zag through 55-mile-an-hour freeway traffic, to gun his car when the traffic signal flahses yellow, and to ease off gently when he comes upon a highway patrol car.

Other drivers of all shapes and sizes, ages and church of their choice seem to have a Code for the Road guaranteed to drive other drivers mad and keep ulcer remedy moving briskly on the market.

I. Do not turn on your turn-indicator until well into the left-turn lane, possibly until you are stopped at the light. Why give away your plans too early?

II. When turning across the center dividing lane in mid-block, angle your car so the rear end still blocks the traffic lane you are leaving. Ignore the angry honking from cars lining up behind you as you wait for on-coming traffic to clear.

II. At a four-way stop, zoom through the intersection right after the car ahead of you; the cross-traffic won't have had time to start up before you are through.

IV. Arriving at two lanes of cars stopped at a traffic light with the right-turn lane open, zip through it, timing your speed to arrive just as the light changes, then roar off ahead of the lot. (A jeering honk is optional.)

V. When entering a main thoroughfare from a side street, swing at once into the lane in which another car is approaching. He will either have to slow down or change lanes. In a way, you are helping him conserve gas, and he should be grateful to you. He won't be.

These are only a few of the Maxims for Maximum Irritation — the list goes to MCDXXXIV or thereabouts — but I'm sure if we all try to keep them in mind as we drive, life (while it lasts) will be more exciting.

We'll all end up on the psychiatrist's couch or the operating table.

Excess acid irritates ulcer

DEAR DR. LAMB — Good day to you. I hope you can give me some much needed advice. I am having pains in my stomach. The doctor says I have an ulcer of the duodenum and two small ones in the stomach.

My problem is that I form a lot of saliva in my mouth and I have to swallow many times per minute which is embarrassing. When I close my mouth it becomes a river, and when I laugh I have to swallow. I was on Probanthine but recently I was changed to another medicine and since then my whole body is feeling tired without doing anything.

My doctor said my ulcers should be okay after he looked into my stomach a few days ago. I had this swallowing problem about two years before my ulcers were discovered.

I would appreciate it if you could tell me what is causing all my problems. I am an 18 year old male. I need help badly.

DEAR READER — I can appreciate your problem. Formation of excessive saliva is fairly common in the presence of an ulcer. It may be a reflex action related to the excess formation of the acid digestive juices in your stomach. These acid digestive juices are part of the cause of your ulcer. We don't see ulcers in young men without some increase in stomach acid.

Usually Probanthine and atropine-like medicines will cause the saliva to dry up. I wonder if you were taking a sufficient amount. These medicines block the nerve to the stomach that stimulates the formation of acid digestive juices. That is why they are often used in treating ulcers.

The doctor must have been satisfied that you had simple ulcers with no important complications and that was why he told you that your ulcers would heal.

I suspect that you were already producing an excess of acid digestive juice before your ulcers were diagnosed and that is why you were already forming too much saliva.

Duodenal ulcers were fairly uncommon in 1900. Now a high percentage of men have them. This probably reflects the increase in stress in our living patterns and the bad habits that go along with modern life. Men have ulcers much more frequently than women. I won't go so far as to say that modern women drive men to have ulcers, but it is a fact that ulcers were more common in women than in men in 1900.

You will need to do some adjusting of your personal life to avoid ulcer problems or even to minimize them. Write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019 and ask for my special report on Ulcers. Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

You should talk to your doctor about your excess saliva problem. And you should avoid cigarettes, alcohol, coffee, tea, colas and chocolate.

A little self-analysis of the stressful aspects of your life might help. Stress seems to be a major factor in causing ulcers. Often ulcers will not heal or will recur if stress is at the bottom of the whole problem. The type of stress involved is related to a great need to achieve, which causes the person to put himself under great pressure.

Anyone can take a trick with an ace. Almost anyone can put his kings, queens and jacks to work. The expert goes further and works with 10's, nines and sometimes even lower cards.

South's normal tendency is to play the king or queen of spades from dummy at trick one. East will take his ace and undoubtedly will shift to the king of clubs. Later South will get to discard either a diamond or club on dummy's other high spade. But that one discard will be completely useless and the defense will score another victory.

South can make the contract easily by just putting the nine and 10 of spades to work.

He plays dummy's deuce of spades at trick one. East wins a cheap trick with the jack and shifts to that same king of clubs.

South takes his ace; plays the king and queen of trumps. He overtakes the queen with dummy's ace and leads dummy's king of spades.

East can do no better than to play his ace. South ruffs, enters dummy with a third trump and discards two clubs on the two good spades. He still loses two diamond tricks, but he has made the contract.

What people say

"Loneliness is the gray menace lurking at the bottom of the champagne glass of life . . . It's a far cry from solitude."

— Divorcee Pat Loud on rebuilding her life after marriage dissolved.

"Let the cowards who are leaving with the Americans go, and let those who love South Vietnam stay and fight. Why run? To do what? To eat leftover American food? Even if the country falls to the Communists, at least they have yellow skins like ours."

— Former Vietnamese Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky five days before he fled by helicopter to the Philippines enroute to the United States.

"I never gauge approval or acceptance by applause. A smile and folded arms are much more encouraging and welcome than claps and a stony expression. Faces, not hands, are what counts."

— Entertainer Carmen McRae

California's lumber industry is slowly coming back to life

BURNEY (AP) — The smile on Leonard Uhl's face was almost a foot wide and long over due.

After a long winter layoff, Uhl and many of his fellow sawmill workers in this small Northern California timber town near Redding were going back to work.

And the grin on Uhl's face showed that was just fine with him. "It's great to be back," he said as the whistle at the Publishers Forest Products sawmill signaled the start of the first work day in six months.

Mills are coming back to life in other parts of California's vast timber country this spring as what one mill operator described as his worst winter in 24 years shows signs of thawing.

But some timber company officials say they see only a moderate improvement in the industry's economic picture until the nation pulls out of its recession. And that, they say, may not happen this year.

"The business is tied to housing starts and the forecasts don't show any big increase in housing starts. So I think there will only be a gradual improvement over this year," said William E. Butler, a general manager with Champion International Corp.

Unemployment rates topped 20 per cent in some timber counties during winter months — sometimes climbing six or seven per cent higher than they were a year ago. Many mills that normally operate all winter long laid off many of their workers, cut back work schedules or closed down.

Champion International's mill in McCloud kept only about 250 of its 600 workers on the payroll during the winter months. That total has since grown to 285 mill hands with 40 loggers working in the woods.

"Basically we bent our backs and had our heads bloodied to keep operating through the winter," said Doug Stowell, California operations manager for Champion.

"It would have been more economical to shut down for the last seven months."

Near Grass Valley, John Casey's Sierra Mountain Mills is operating with about half its work force after almost completely shutting down last fall. "There is real guarded optimism about what is going to happen in the future," he says.

Over on the northern coast, one of Pacific Lumber Co.'s mills and its plywood plant are back on five-day work weeks after cutting back to four-day operations.

But the company's chairman of the board says his firm's salesmen are "pessimistic" about 1975.

"All I can tell you is what our sales department is guessing at," said Edward Carpenter. "They don't look for too much recovery."

Carpenter said his company escaped much of last winter's hardship because it specializes in redwood processing.

"This recession has affected more the douglas fir and plywood production," he said. "Redwood goes into industrial use and quite a bit of it goes into home expansion. douglas fir goes into framing. If there are any new housing starts, douglas fir mills are the ones that take the beating first."

In Sierra County, the unemployment rate hit 25 per cent in January. In March — the last month for which totals are available — it dropped to 21.6 per cent.

In Shasta County, where the Burney mill is located, January's unemployment rate was 18.3 per cent. There were 1,000 fewer workers in the county's wood and lumber products industry that month than there had been in January 1974.

The county's unemployment rate hit 19.7 per cent in February but dropped to 18.9 per cent in March.

In Humboldt County, on the northern coast, the unemployment rate reached 18 per cent in January but by March it had dropped to 16.6 per cent.

Housing starts during the first three months of this year were down sharply. Security Pacific Bank reported that there were building permits issued for only 7,624 residential units in March.

Jane Hillsen returns from trip to Greece

"Greece is beautiful," says Jane Hillsen of Hillsen's Holiday Tours and Travel who just returned from an eight-day tour of the area in and around Athens as a guest of the Greek government.

Mrs. Hillsen was one of 10 travel agents in a group for whom Lela Cassavetty was guide. Mrs. Cassavetty is an expert on the antiquities of Athens and mythological background of Delphi.

She took her guests to the stadium at Epidavros, built in 450 B.C. and said to be the best preserved stadium of its kind, seating 16,000 people. "The acoustics are superb," says Mrs. Hillsen.

Still in use, the outdoor amphitheatre drew 21,000 persons to hear a recital there by Maria Callas last year.

A highlight of the stay was the small taverna dinner for which Mr. and Mrs. John Georgiades were host and hostess. Mrs. Georgiades (Jane Hill) is Mrs. Hillsen's cousin and the owner of American Travel in Athens.

This summer, Mrs. Georgiades and Mrs. Hillsen will conduct a 23-day tour of Greece and the Greek Islands, including a seven-day Aegean Cruise. It will start September 24 from Pomona/Claremont. Anyone interested may contact Hillsen's Holiday Tours and Travel, 102 Orange Street, telephone 793-2411.

HEARING AID SERVICE ANNOUNCES NEW HEARING AID

A new eyeglass hearing aid has just been introduced by MAICO HEARING AID INSTRUMENTS, it was announced today by Robert Casazza, dealer for MAICO products in this area. The aid employs a special ultracardiod directivity pattern previously used in microphones for TV broadcasting to concentrate on the voice of a far off entertainer or concert soloist.

According to Robert Casazza, a directional microphone system contained in the aid has two openings for sound; one at the front and an additional opening at the rear. Sounds entering from the rear pass through a microscopic filtering device which minutely slows them down, throwing them out of phase with sounds entering unimpeded through the front opening. Front entering sounds, often those the wearer may want to hear, are fully amplified. Rear entering sounds do not receive the same amount of amplification.

In controlled tests at MAICO laboratories in Minneapolis, engineers determined that sounds entering the aid from the front received significantly more amplification than other sounds entering the aid around it, compared to models not having the same directivity patterns.

Called DirectionEar Mark 140, the hearing aid will be demonstrated at Robert Casazza Maico Hearing Aid at 207 Yale Avenue, Claremont. Please phone 624-4595 for an appointment.

Death rates decline

WASHINGTON (AP) — Death rates for heart disease, stroke and accidents declined last year but the cancer death rate went up, according to a new government report.

Together, the four accounted for about 72 per cent of the 1.9 million deaths in the United States in 1974.

Rates dropped 13 per cent for accidents of all kinds, the fourth leading cause of death. That included a 20 per cent decrease in deaths from motor vehicle accidents, the top killer among persons in their teens and early twenties.

"The lower speed limits and other energy conservation measures recently adopted by the nation undoubtedly are accelerating the downward trend," Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said.

HEW's Center for Health Statistics said about 45,000 persons died in motor vehicle accidents, about 10,000 fewer than in 1973. The 1974 death rate of 21.3 per 100,000 population was the lowest since 1961.

Death rates for heart disease, the nation's top killer, declined 2.5 per cent to an estimated 351.6 per 100,000. The decline has continued since 1963 when the rate was 375.2 per 100,000.

The death rate for stroke or cerebrovascular disease was estimated at 97.1 per 100,000, a 4.9 per cent drop from 1973.

Deaths from cancer, the No. 2 killer disease, climbed 1.3 per cent last year to an estimated rate of 169.4 per 100,000.

Players stage Simon comedy

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Neil Simon's mini-trilogy, "Plaza Suite," made up of a poignant one-acter, a purely funny one and a slapstick one, was given a sparkling performance by the Four Colleges Players in Blach Auditorium, Scripps College, over the weekend. It repeats at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

For some reason, Director Ken Sturm has chosen to reverse the customary order, playing the slapstick first and the bitter-sweet piece last — a mistake, in my opinion, like serving dessert first at a dinner. However, the young actors do a fine job with all three sets.

"Visitor from Forest Hills" is played raucously with all stops out. John Harnagel hams it up as the harrassed father of the bride; and Ruth Howell reveals skillful timing and a fine sense of comedy as the mother. She handles Simon's comedic dramatics as though to the mannersim born.

In "Visitor from Hollywood," two superb comics have the audience chuckling from the opening line. Steve Cotten is hilarious as the "famous Hollywood producer," and Amy Gerstler is pure gold as the PTA housewife from Tenafly, N.J. Together they have staid Blach Hall rocking with laughter as the will-she, won't-she charade gallops on.

In "Visitor from Mamaroneck," Sturm had to step in for Jeff Klein, who suffered a leg injury, and the director could have done worse than cast himself in the husband role. He is lean, vain, acerbic and irritable, something of a stereotype of the overly busy businessman, but funny and sad at the same time.

Cindy Wilding as his loving but unloved partner is quite tremendous in her subtle, bitchy, longing, heart-breaking characterization. Kittenish, childish, hopelessly hopeful, she is a prototype of the lorn and lonely office widow.

Vicki Briggs, Tom Murov, Carl Kanowsky, Jeremiah Barry and Sharrie Stewart chip in competently in smaller roles.

Sturm keeps his dramatic triptych moving at meaningful, varied temp, and gets good performances from his cast(s). Perry Jamieson's scene design is quite spalsy and Bruce Bidlack does an imaginative job with the lighting.

CHICAGO SHUFFLE — Chita Rivera, left, and Gwen Verdon prance their way through a sassy number in the musical, "Chicago," opening June 3 on Broadway. This is part of the continuing activity in theaterland this year. There is usually a summer halt in arrivals.

CAA slates artist

Whittier artist Jerome Grimmer will give a demonstration at a meeting of the Chino Art Association in the Chino Community Building at 9:30 a.m. Thursday. The public is invited.

Grimmer, at the age of 19, abandoned an already extensive education in classical music to enter the art field. He enrolled at Principia College in Illinois to study watercolor for two years and continued his studies at the Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles. Upon graduation he worked as a commercial illustrator at North American Aviation and later served with the Navy as an illustrator for several of its publications.

In 1968 he first entered his paintings in competitions and since then has won more than 50 top awards in local, regional and national competitions. His reputation has continued to grow steadily, and today his paintings are in the collections of large corporations and private collectors.

Grimmer devotes his full time to painting and teaching in his studio-home. His lecture demonstrations are in demand by art groups throughout California.

Broadway makes sturdy comeback

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway staged an impressive comeback during the '74-'75 season after a five-year slide in revenue, audience size and number of plays.

On the other hand, as usual, four shows out of five were losers. The unhappiest angels of all dropped $1-million on a production that didn't even get to town.

Taking the pulse of the Fabulous Invalid is an annual rite at the end of the traditional June-May theatrical contracts.

The healthiest sign of all during the semester was a $10-million jump in box office gross from the previous year's $46.2-million take, closely approaching the $58-million record set in '68-'69.

Most of the upswing appeared attributable to an increase in the number of productions and to audience growth. The two items generated a 20 per cent increase in the total number of playing weeks. Ticket prices generally remained at the previous year's scale.

Commercial producers put on 50 dramas, comedies and musicals — seven more than the year before. Nine other events were presented by nonprofit repertory organizations whose ticket receipts are included in total box-office revenue.

Five years ago, when the slide from the 1968-69 peak began, there were just 40 regular commercial entrants, and activity has hovered thereabouts until the present resurgence.

Breast-beaters who had been bewailing the decline in initiative of Broadway impresarios could note one robustly contradictory statistic: 24 of this year's exhibits were Main Stem originals. There were only 10 such the previous season when revivals, rehashes and imports dominated.

For a while, however, made-in-England items appeared about to turn the Great White Way into a West End Annex.

A dozen shows, mostly from the National Theater of Great Britain and the Royal Shakespeare Company — which also did a repertory over in the Brooklyn Academy of Music — threatened to blitz native effort.

The invasion produced the Tony Award drama "Equus" and a highly popular "Sherlock Holmes." But it also included such hideous mistakes as "Flowers" and "The Rocky Horror Show."

Eleven of the season's arrivals continue after May 31, and nine are local products. Among them are such top money-makers as "The Wiz," which won seven Tony musical prizes, and the comedy sell-out "Same Time, Next Year," which stars Ellen Burstyn, the Oscar and Tony winner.

Others which appear to have a good chance at recouping investments are "Absurb Person Singular," "All Over Town," "Clams on the Half Shell," "The Ritz" and "Shenandoah."

That popularity doesn't always reflect artistic merit was shown by Edward Albee's "Seascape." The philosophic comedy won the Pulitzer Prize for Drama — after leaving Broadway with a $159,000 deficit on its $190,000 investment.

Despite a generally upbeat outlook, many angels got badly singed backing losers in the Broadway sweepstakes. Some managements won't divulge profit-loss figures, but enough do to show the long-shot hazards of theater enterprise. Five shows bombed out after single performances.

Four of the 38 commercial offerings that have closed made modest profits; four others, like "Seascape," expect to make up deficits on tour.

Joyce Brothers
Trauma after rape

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Last year, I was distraught because my eldest daughter was raped and robbed while coming home from work. Now, I'm deeply worried about my two younger daughters since we live in a high-crime area.

My eldest girl has never really recovered emotionally from the experience she went through. She still has terrible nightmares and still has a fear of men. She not only fears men but seems to hate them. I've tried to talk with her about this and to remind her that the rapist was only one individual but it hasn't helped. After the rape, she broke off with her boyfriend. I can't blame her or help her, but I don't want this to happen to my other two girls. Do you think they should study judo or carry weapons to protect themselves? — S.L.

Dear S.L.: Most weapons are illegal and there is always the strong possibility that any weapons they did carry might be turned on them.

Many schools across the country are now offering courses in self-defense, to help girls protect themselves if they should ever need to. A school in Milwaukee has a course in self-defense that is known as the "rape class." It teaches girls how to think about what would happen to them, how they would react, including the emotional pros and cons. Police officers, psychologists, rape victims, judo experts and others lecutre to the class, and the girls do research with lawyers to learn the legal steps involved in rape prosecution. While the girls don't learn judo at this particular school, they do learn how and when to kick, hit, bite, chop or scream. They are also taught the element of surprise.

One of the greatest protections your daughters can have, however, is to avoid dangerous situations by traveling with others, staying from remote, unlit areas, never hitchhiking and never being out alone after a certain hour, which you set.

Rape is a terrible act of violence and the trauma that women suffer lingers for a long period; sometimes the effects last a lifetime.

Two or three weeks after the attack the victim goes through a phase characterized by acute fears of physical violence and death. Shortly after the rape, most women show their fear and anger through crying, sobbing, smiling, restlessness or a tight emotional control that masks the intensity of their real feelings. Sometimes, the impact is so strong that the victim refuses to accept the fact that she has been attacked.

Most psychologists are particulary concerned when a patient refuses to talk about what has happend to her. This denial is dangerous and can produce phobias that are made more severe by silence. In many cases, the woman who can't face what has happened, blames herself in some totally unrealistic way. This may happen when she has been brought up in a family where she has been taught that women are supposed to protect themselves against the "natural, violent drives of the male."

You may still be able to help your eldest daughter by encouraging her to seek professional guidance. If she doesn't get this help, she may be burdened with the memories of this incident for the rest of her life.

Kerosene is a kind of oil that is used as a fuel for jet engines and for burning in lamps and in stoves — especially camping equipment — for lighting or cooking.

Most kerosene comes from petroleum, the oil that comes from oil wells.

Petroleum is a mixture of many materials. Separating petroleum into its many parts is called "refining" it.

At an oil refinery, the petroleum is heated until the kerosene part changes into a vapor. The hot kerosene vapor is drawn off and condensed back into its liquid form. The kerosene is further processed to make it pure.

Other fuels, such as gasoline and diesel oil are refined from petroleum in the same manner as kerosene.

Petroleum also provides oil and greases for machinery lubrication and asphalts for paving highways.

Kerosene is often called "coal oil" because kerosene was first obtained by refining the oil from coal.

Camp Pendleton

Viet refugees want to stay

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — This primitive, crowded tent city has become so familiar to some refugees that they are reluctant to leave it for the unknown outside.

Some refugees about to depart for new lives with relatives or sponsors said Monday they had very mixed feelings about saying goodbye to "Little Saigon."

And some refugees without sponsors, fearing mistreatment and isolation from their countrymen, reportedly believe it is better to stay here than to rush into a strange living situation and no sure income.

"If they don't have jobs waiting for them, some people would rather stay here where they at least get three meals a day," said a former Saigon resident.

A former U.S. government employe who has been working with one of the voluntary sponsor-finding agencies here said she had seen a number of refugees turn down sponsorship.

"They don't know if a sponsor will be good to them. They feel that rather than be hasty about leaving, it is better to wait here because eventually the government might resettle them all in one place," said Do Thi Sang, 30, who was a personnel worker with the Defense Attache Office.

There is a distinct preference, she said, for sponsorship that would group many refugees in one place, such as an agreement by Washington State to sponsor 500 Vietnamese.

Hong Du Tran, the Vietnamese manager of camp five, said he doubted there were many refusals of sponsorship. But he agreed that there were widespread feelings of reluctance and fears that sponsors won't live up to their responsibilities. "We are very concerned," he told a newsman, "that you follow up on our people and report if there is any mistreatment."

One of the handful of refugees to be processed out of the camp Monday was Thanh Do Viet, 27, an interpreter who is taking his wife and child to a sponsoring family in San Diego. "I have mixed feelings," he said. "I am not quite glad to leave. I even postponed my departure for one day to have more time to say goodbye because soon we will be all spread out and won't have the opportunity to see our fellow countrymen."

Among many refugees, however, particularly those whose futures are fairly well laid out, the predominant feeling is frustration at the long delays in receiving clearance to leave.

One young woman voiced a common complaint: "There is nothing to do. Just line up for meals three times a day. That's all."

The coldest temperature ever recorded in Antarctica was -126.9 degrees F at Vostok, Antarctica, on Aug. 24, 1960.
